ALL PARKING BANS IN BUSINESS AREAS VOIDED BY COUNCIL

Downtown City Streets,

Thrown Open to Drivers

Measure Goes to Key.

PAY HIKES VOTED FOR 600 WORKERS

Key Expected To Veto
$20,000 Paper on Basis of Strained Condition of Municipal Finances.

Non-parking in downtown Atlanta streets was wiped out Monday when city council passed a measure which places practically no restrictions on the motoring public. On only a few streets in the business zone and these mostly narrow or congested locations, does the ordinance place a one-hour parking limit.

The measure went to Mayor Key for his approval after passing council without opposition.

The ordinance states that there shall be no parking at any time under viaducts or bridges, but permits white about 90 per cent of the present yellow curbs.

Council also voted to increase about 900 municipal employees an aggregate sum of about $20,000 from August 1, the effective date, to the end of the year.

Veto of the salary hikes by Mayor James L. Key was seen because of the strained condition of municipal finances.

Abolition of parking restrictions came from the police committee and was presented by Councilman J. Raymond Curtis, vice chairman.

Under the new ordinance, which amends the ordinance passed April 3, 1933, unlimited parking will be allowed at all hours in all parts of the municipality except as specified and except in the restricted "inner-parking area."

Restrictions Imposed.

Restrictions imposed by the new ordinance follow:

A. Non-parking during safety zones, placed in the streets for loading and unloading of trucks, or 15 feet of the points on curbs opposite the ends of safety zones.

B. Non-parking within 15 feet of street intersections.

C. Non-parking within 15 feet of fire hydrants.

D. Non-parking within 15 feet of the driveways entering fire stations. No driveways may be blocked.

E. Non-parking at all hours under or on all viaducts or bridges.

F. Non-parking for a space of 20 feet in front of the city hall, the courthouse, the United States court-house, the postoffice, the city auditorium, any hotel and any theater.

G. Maximum fine $25.

A fine not to exceed $25 or 30 days in the stockade is provided for violation of the terms of the new ordinance.

Stork Soon To Visit Lindberghs, Tunneys

NEW YORK, June 18.—(UP)—Homes of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Gene Tunney are being prepared for visits from the stork, the Daily News will say tomorrow.

The former heavyweight boxing champion was reported to have made hospital arrangements for Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, of Greenwich. The Tunneys have a son, Gene Jr., 3.

Neither the Lindberghs nor Tunney households would confirm or deny the story.

DAKOTA IS TENSE AS 2 MEN CLAIM GOVERNOR'S TITLE

Troops on Move as Felony
Conviction of Langer
Creates 'Unique Situation in Government.

BISMARCK, N. D., June 18.—(AP)—A demand that Governor William Langer be ousted from office because of his conviction of a federal felony was made tonight on Attorney-General P. O. Sathie by counsel for Lieutenant Governor Ole H. Olson, who contends he is now the legal chief executive.

By special delivery mail, Olson's request was delivered to Sathie, a political ally of Langer, to elicit a day of activity that saw federal troops marshaled as a precaution against threats made on Judge Andrew Miller, who presided in the Langer trial.

Olson took the oath as governor before a notary public, but did not file a record of it.

Colonel George Harris, commander at Fort Lincoln, near here, ordered out two truckloads of troops, who guarded the federal building, scene of a court hearing today, when Governor Langer's sentence was postponed, and the hotel in which Judge Miller resided.

Olson and prosecutor requested the troops, Colonel Harris said, to prevent any interruption of court procedure. He said the department of justice is "intimidated" by the need for protection.

Sentence Postponed.

As Langer stood in federal court this morning and heard the court defer sentence until June 23—two days after the June primary in which he is a candidate for re-election—Olson conferred with political friends. He took his oath of office as governor but did not file it. Lawyers studied methods to be employed in attempting to oust Langer through court action.

Two truckloads of federal troops moved from Fort Lincoln, near here, and were stationed before the federal building as the court convened.

Colonel George Harris, commander at Fort Lincoln, revealed that requests for protection against interruption of the federal court proceedings, made by Judge Miller and United States District Attorney P. W. Lanier led to the stationing of the troops outside the federal building.

SOLONS THREATEN COERCION TO BRING FOULOUS' REMOVAL

Committee Members
Warn Legislation May Encounter Trouble If Shakeup is Not Made.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—A warning that army air corps legislation would encounter trouble in congress unless the corps were reorganized was given today by members of the house committee that recommended immediate removal of Major General Benjamin D. Foulois as chief of the army's fliers.

The committee's unanimous report which urged that Foulois be relieved, was transmitted to Secretary Dern. He said he had not had time to study it, and would make no recommendation to President Roosevelt until he had.

To Block Funds.

But meanwhile, the committee members agreed unless Foulois were removed, air corps legislation would come to a standstill. Their attitude was expressed this way by Representative Goss, republican, one of the eight military affairs subcommittee members who signed the report:

"The officials downtown must remember that they are working for us, we are working for them."

The committee pigeon-holed several air corps bills this session, and blocked senate confirmation of the nomination of Lieutenant Colonel Jacob E. Fickel, Louisiana's assistant, to be a brigadier general.

General Answered.

The committee today took official cognizance of a statement issued by Foulois to newspapers in which he expressed regret that the committee's hearings had been "secret." Chairman Rogers, democrat, was authorized by the committee to say this on the house floor in answer:

"We did not want to besmirch anyone. Major General Foulois had no intention of resigning, asserted the charges against him were unfair and unjust, and declared he was willing to meet his accusers before any court."

Will Not Resign.

In his statement Foulois said he had no intention of resigning, asserted the charges against him were unfair and unjust, and declared he was willing to meet his accusers before any court.

The house committee's report recommended Foulois be removed because of "dishonesty," "gross misconduct," "incompetency," and "mismanagement" in connection with the army's purchase of planes by negotiated contract instead of by competitive bidding.

Foulois was 39 years old when he enlisted as a private in the United States army for the Spanish-American War 36 years ago.

Lieutenant Benjamin D. Foulois was 30 years old when Orville Wright, inventor of a new-fangled machine that flew through the air, took him, in 1909, on the first cross-country flight ever made in this country.

Young Foulois liked it, learned to fly with Wright as his instructor, and has been flying ever since.

Five Killed, 15 Burned
In N. Y. State Explosion

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., June 18.—(AP)—A flaming explosion of huge gasoline tanks killed at least five persons, police estimated, and severely burned 15 others late today at a petroleum depot on the outskirts of this city.

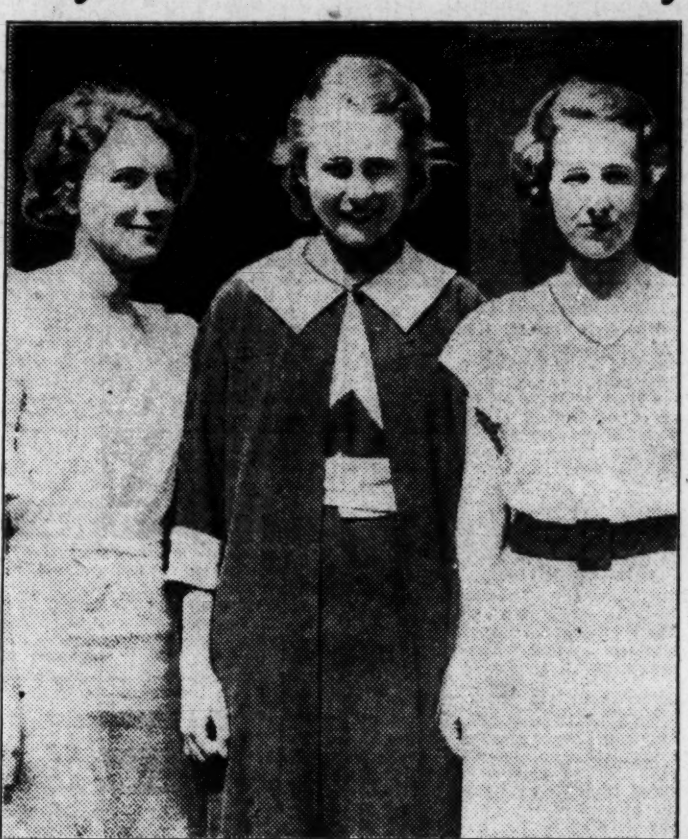

The first explosion—that of a 20,000-gallon tank—threw deadly flames into the air, and a second explosion, which had been attracted by a fire at the establishment.

Two bodies, one of them that of a fireman, were recovered. Others were sought by police and rescue workers.

Two tanks, similar to the 20,000-gallon one, exploded later, the last one after police had fired bullets into it with rifles to lessen the pressure. No one was believed killed in the second and third explosions.

Two other prize winners were Miss Eleanor Rice, of Macon, and Miss Mary Dean Clement, of Nashville, Tenn., while the sole northern girl to take a major honor was Miss Delphine H. GEORGIA WILL GET $13,000,000 FUND

Georgia will get $13,000,000 in federal highway funds in the next three years as a result of approval Monday by President Roosevelt of a recently approved bill setting up a total of $522,000,000 for highway construction in the next three years providing it is matched dollar for dollar by the states receiving it in the last two years of the three-year program.

Chairman W. Eugene Wilburn, of the state highway board, said that Georgia would match the fund and that the board would be ready to start using it as soon as it has contracted for the remaining $3,000,000 of the $10,000,000 granted last year under the public works act. Mr. Wilburn said that the present fund would be used up by September 1 and the new fund would be started on the following month.

The federal highway fund is split up according to population of the states participating. Under this plan Georgia gets 2.12 per cent of the total. In actual figures the state's share of the latest fund will be $13,050,000.

The bill provides for resumption of the federal aid matching program only in the last two years.

$200,000,000 in Grants.

The program calls for $200,000,000 to be authorized as outright grants. During the fiscal year 1935 at least 25 per cent of this must be used for so-called feeder or secondary roads. An additional $24,000,000 is provided for roads on government lands.

For 1936 and 1937, however, the regular federal aid matching program will be resumed under which all but the so-called public lands states which

At the same time, in Brighton, England, a trunk containing a woman's torso was found in a railway luggage room.

Dean Inge Resigns Post at St. Paul's

LONDON, June 18.—(AP)—The resignation of William Ralph Inge, 74, long known as the "gloomy dean" of St. Paul's cathedral, was announced tonight. He will be succeeded on October 2 by Walter Robert Matthews, dean of Exeter.

Dean Inge, recognized as a profound philosopher and thinker, became known as the "gloomy dean" after his expression of pessimistic views in "England," one of his early books. In later years, according to a general impression, his attitude toward life became more cheerful.

ALL PRODUCTION EXCEEDING QUOTAS IS SUBJECT TO TAX

2,000-LB. EXEMPTION STRICKEN BY SENATE

Levy on Excess Yield

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Congress today approved the federal government's second experiment in compulsory crop control—this one dealing with tobacco.

Including provisions similar to the Bankhead cotton control measure enacted a few weeks ago, the Kerr bill penalizing growers who exceed farm administration or specially allowed quotas, was sent to the White House when the house agreed to senate amendments.

The legislation was denounced by republican opponents as further regimentation of agriculture.

As amended, the measure provides that persons marketing more tobacco—except Maryland, Virginia and cigar leaf—than allowed them under their farm administration voluntary contracts to cut production shall pay a tax amounting to one-third of the sale price of the tobacco, with the secretary of agriculture authorized to lower the tax to one-fourth if he sees fit.

The secretary, however, is permitted in counties in which he finds an equitable distribution of tobacco production does not result from farm agreements to grant quotas to not more than 6 per cent of the county's tobacco growers whose production under farm compacts would not be less than 1,500 pounds.

They like those who signed agreements, will be given tax-exemption certificates in the amount of their quotas. The certificates will be accepted in lieu of tax payments.

Exemption Dropped.

The plan will apply to the 1934-35 crop, and may be extended to the next year's production, if three-fourths of the growers of any one type approve its continuance.

A blanket 2,000-pound minimum exemption was stricken out by the senate.

The agriculture secretary also is empowered to fix import quotas based on the five-year average of domestic production of the different types, except that more than 4,000 persons were killed and injured in the hurricane that struck the country nearly two weeks ago.

Dispatches from San Salvador have estimated the known dead at 2,000. Property losses, the minister said, were placed at $4,000,000.

Utilities Investigation Will Be Continued

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Congress today authorized the federal trade commission to continue its utilities investigation until January, 1936.

The extension was approved by President Roosevelt.

Spanish Parliament Is Target of Bombers

MADRID, June 18.—(UP)—A bomb exploded on the steps of parliament at 9 o'clock tonight. None was injured and the damage was negligible.

On hearing the explosion, civil guards inside the cortes and police from a station across the street rushed to the scene. They quickly dispersed a crowd.

Two men were arrested. The patrol exploded with a terrific noise, alarming pedestrians and customers at cafes opposite.

'Sandwich Movie' Brings $25 Fine for Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 18.—(AP)—Charles Mensing, operator of a downtown theater, was fined $25 in city court today on a charge of operating a picture show yesterday in defiance of a Tennessee "blue law" prohibiting Sunday shows. He will appeal the case in a "test" of the law.

Patrons were allowed to attend a movie at Mensing's theater free of charge by paying 40 cents for a sandwich and a cold drink. He contends that since he did not charge for the movie that he did not violate the law which states that shows cannot be operated Sunday where compensation is received.

ACTION COMPLETED ON MORATORIUM TO HELP FARMERS

Gives Six Years in Which Planter May Pay Rental
Only While He Seeks Debt Reduction.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—One of the longest steps ever taken to help the farmer was complete tonight when both houses of congress formally adopted the conference report on the farm moratorium bill.

The proposal—if approved by the president—will provide a virtual six-year moratorium on farm indebtedness.

Purpose of Measure.

The proposal, brought forward in the senate by Senator Frazier, republican, North Dakota, probably goes further than any other bill designed to help the farmer scale down his debts, or to give him a breathing spell in which to accumulate money to pay them.

Under the plan, a farmer seeking relief may apply to conciliation courts established during the Hoover administration. If the court is to be adjudged a bankrupt if his creditors refuse to authorize a scaling down of his debts, or if the reduction is unsatisfactory to him.

In that event, the court must appoint appraisers to determine "the fair market value" of the property.

If the creditors accept that fair market value appraisal, the farmer is given six years to "rebuy" his property at an interest rate which begins at 1 per cent annually and mounts to 5 per cent within four years.

But if a creditor objects to this arrangement, the court is authorized to declare a moratorium for six years. The farmer may apply the property for that period, paying the rental value which the court fixes.

This rental will be divided among the creditors as would the payments, should it be agreed to let the farmer repurchase his property.

Senator Frazier said that at the end of the moratorium period the farmer could repurchase his property or if creditors disagreed, the first fair market valuation.

"This goes far beyond anything yet done to help the farmer pay his mortgage indebtedness," Frazier said. "I think it will be followed next session by my bill to allow the grower to refinance his indebtedness and pay 1.12 per cent interest on it."

Independents' Strategy.

In addition, action was completed during the day on the vital second deficiency bill, which carries more than $2,000,000,000 in appropriations largely for relief expenditures.

The slow progress of the conference on the housing bill, which has been out the day, gave the independents their opportunity to force through the railway bill. They quickly grasped the opportunity.

Early in the day they began with an announcement by Wheeler, democrat, Montana, that he and others would filibuster against adjournment unless and until the railway bill was enacted.

Robinson protested vigorously. He said he was for the bill but had been informed that the opposition to it would cause an extensive prolongation of the session. Then he brought President Roosevelt into the situation.

Filibuster Breaks.

"The president thinks, and I think," he said, "that if the measure is to be taken up and indefinitely discussed it had better go over until the next session. It is not of emergency nature."

Wheeler and other independents replied with their threat that "unless we do get a chance to vote on it, I will filibuster."

HOUSING MEASURE HAS EASY SAILING

Huge Deficiency Bill,

Resume of achievements of 73rd congress will be found in page 8.

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Congress finally quit tonight, with party independents in command and a program a little more than complete.

That little more was the price of adjournment exacted by the insurgents in a bold last-minute drive which threatened the opposition of the democratic leadership.

It consisted of the Dill railway labor disputes adjustment act, pushed through to enactment even over the decision of President Roosevelt to let it go over to the next congress.

The measure lay at the heart of the parliamentary jam and crisis-crisis of filibusters which until early this evening threatened to keep congress in session for days longer.

Moratorium Wins.

Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, conducted a persistent one-man talking match against the bill, but, learning that the democratic leaders had capitulated to the insurgents and decided to wait him out he abandoned his tactics.

With that measure out of the way, the end came quickly through adoption of a conference report on the administration housing bill, the main item on the Roosevelt program, and in house acceptance of senate amendments to the rail bill.

The day also saw the independents victorious in an effort to get through adoption of a conference report of the Frazier bill, giving bankrupt farmers a virtual six-year moratorium on their debts.

A wrangle over this measure, and a filibuster for it by Long, of Louisiana, were important contributing causes of the abandonment of carefully mapped plans to end the session on Saturday night.

TEAR GAS BOMBS ARE USED TO END CONVICTS' MUTINY

LAKELAND, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Tear gas was used to end a short-lived mutiny at a state highway prison camp near here today during which a negro prisoner was shot in the leg.

The prisoners, a group of negroes and about 15 white felons, refused to go to work this morning. Warden immediately called Sheriff J. L. Spivey at Valdosta who came here with Deputy J. B. McDonald and a supply of tear gas.

Meanwhile a warden advanced on the negro mutineers and one of them hurled a piece of iron at the officer. The warden fired one time, striking the negro in the leg.

The white prisoners had remained in their barracks with the statement they "had just as soon die here as anywhere else."

When Sheriff Spivey arrived he sent three charges of tear gas into the barracks and the prisoners left, expressing a willingness to return to work. The negroes also stopped their demonstrations.

The wounded negro was not seriously injured.

BEER SELLERS FACE
GRIFFIN COURT ACTION
GRIFFIN, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Judge W. B. Seary Jr. today told the Spalding county grand jury it could do nothing but return indictments against persons when evidence showed they had sold beer in this state.

With some 18 cases charging sales of beer docketed for action by the grand jury, Judge Seary in his charge said, "You can do nothing but return indictments if the evidence shows they sold beer, for there is no doubt but that it is against the state law to sell beer or even near beer in Georgia."

The court pointed out that the laws could be changed by the legislature, but as long as they are in effect every court official could not be true to his oath unless he enforced them.

Discussing the possibilities of licensing beer for revenue, Judge Seary said that if revenue was the only consideration, more money could be obtained by licensing burglars and murderers.

He complimented the Griffin city county for refusing to issue beer licenses and said to do so would be to "betray their oath of office."

MILLEN, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Police Chief F. WEEK-END ACCIDENTS FATAL TO 5 IN GEORGIA

Baby's Dress Catches in Wheels; Wet Pavement
Claims One.

By the Associated Press.
Five persons were killed in accidents in Georgia Sunday and Monday.

Roland Preston Clark, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clarke, of Quitman, was killed late Sunday afternoon when his dress caught in the rear wheel of an automobile which had been cranked up while it was standing on a jack.

The child was whirled around the wheel and a five-year-old brother tried to pull the little one free. The baby's body was thrown several feet from the wheel when the father cut off the motor and the car stopped.

The automobile was standing on a jack in the garage and the baby ran into the structure just as the motor was started. Several children of the family witnessed the accident.

The baby was taken to a Barwick hospital and died soon afterward.

Miss Thelma Dillard, who was en route from Miami Beach, Fla., to Greenboro, N. C., died at Macon early Monday of injuries received in an automobile accident near Forsyth, Georgia.

Miss Dillard, about 35 years of age, was riding with Miss Ruth Canaday, also of Miami Beach, when the car was on the wet highway and plunged into a ditch Sunday afternoon.

Miss Canaday was not hurt.

The two women were connected with the First National Bank of Miami Beach. They had planned to separate in Atlanta, Miss Dillard going on to Greensboro and Miss Canaday to Chicago.

Miss Dillard was born in Greer, S. C., and had lived at Miami Beach for about eight years. Her body will be sent to Miami Beach.

Joseph Anderson Pryor, 22, died early today from injuries received in an automobile accident Sunday on the Dixie highway near Fitzgerald.

Four persons in the car with Pryor, Ralph Harrison, Ruby Harrison, Marcia Dickett and Gussie Dickson, were injured but were reported out of danger at a local hospital. Pryor's body will be taken to Leslie for funeral and interment.

A coroner's jury at Augusta Monday exonerated Robert Stephens and C. C. Cooper, drivers of vehicles that figured in an accident Sunday, causing the death of Tessie Andrews, 19, of Augusta, from any blame.

Stephens' automobile collided with a truck driven by Cooper. Andrews was a passenger in the truck. Both drivers had been released under bond pending the inquest.

Willie Lee, 51, car repairer, was killed Monday in a fall at the Atlantic Coast Line shops at Waycross. He died almost instantly.

BEER SELLERS FACE
GRIFFIN COURT ACTION
GRIFFIN, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Judge W. B. Seary Jr. today told the Spalding county grand jury it could do nothing but return indictments against persons when evidence showed they had sold beer in this state.

With some 18 cases charging sales of beer docketed for action by the grand jury, Judge Seary in his charge said, "You can do nothing but return indictments if the evidence shows they sold beer, for there is no doubt but that it is against the state law to sell beer or even near beer in Georgia."

The court pointed out that the laws could be changed by the legislature, but as long as they are in effect every court official could not be true to his oath unless he enforced them.

Discussing the possibilities of licensing beer for revenue, Judge Seary said that if revenue was the only consideration, more money could be obtained by licensing burglars and murderers.

He complimented the Griffin city county for refusing to issue beer licenses and said to do so would be to "betray their oath of office."

JACK MORLEY

Tut, tut.. Mr. Artist!

WE can't imagine our Post's 40% Bran Flakes making quite such a change in anyone!

However, in all sincerity, we do want to say this much, to everyone: If you happen to be feeling rather "cantankerous" and out-of-sorts, it may be because you're a bit run-down... it may be due to a sluggish intestine, caused by lack of bulk in your diet.

So why don't you eat Post's 40% Bran Flakes every morning? It contains bran to supply that bulk you need, to help keep food wastes moving along the intestinal tract... and to promote regular elimination. It also contains other parts of wheat, to supply that appetizing flavor. You'll love it!

Poetess and Phoney Prince Would Wed Way Out of Jail

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—Light-hearted and bubbling with thoughts of poetry, Louise Krist, 18, and beautiful, and her middle-aged artist lover, Childe De Bohan d'Harcourt, were confined in jail cells tonight after a fortnight of carefree life while police searched the city for the girl.

The mystery surrounding Miss Krist's disappearance two weeks ago after attending a poetry reading of the Raven Poetry Circle in Greenwich Village was swept away by an observing citizen, who pointed them out to a policeman as they strolled arm in arm in the sunshine.

"A romance of the ages," said d'Harcourt, a bogus nobleman known to village citizens as "The Prince" and "The Count," and who has a prison record extending back to 1914. Then the couple was escorted to the missing persons' bureau, the beautiful Viennese girl nervous and d'Harcourt apparently calm.

"I am the super-conscious mind," chanted the poet-artist, pointing his gold-headed cane toward the ceiling of the missing persons' bureau. "I am the genius," a detective interferred.

4-H CLUB BUILDING DEDICATED IN WALKER

LAFALETTE, Ga., June 18.—Dedication exercises have been held here by the Mount Carmel 4-H Club at which time their new home which has been in course of construction for some time was opened.

The Mount Carmel club was organized in 1931 with eight members and by steady growth that number has been increased to 40. Desiring a permanent meeting place, the club members planned a camp which was built of logs hauled to the site by local citizens. Various entertainments were given to raise funds to use in equipping the building, all of the labor being donated by Walker county citizens.

The building was completed recently and has just been dedicated and opened. It is not only used as headquarters for the 4-H members but it is also used as a community center.

Those who attended the dedication exercises included G. V. Cunningham, state 4-H club leader; A. S. Bussey, assistant state director, and Miss Lucille Turner, of Atlanta, state 4-H club worker.

Atlanta's June Rainfall Records Show Wide Variance From Normal

Fair weather today, with temperatures extremes of 64 to 83, was forecast by the weather bureau Monday. The temperature Monday ranged between 60 and 86 degrees and the day was clear.

In spite of the recent rainfall that has been so disastrous to crops, especially in southern Georgia, the year to date shows a deficiency of 2.56 inches, although June to date shows an excess of 1.78 inches.

The normal rainfall is based on a 46-year average measurement, and was determined by the weather bureau about six years ago. The rainfall is measured by an instrument.

The normal rainfall for January 1 to June 18 is 24.33 inches. Actual rainfall for the year to date was 21.77 inches. The normal for June 1 to June 18 is 2.21, and in that period this year 3.99 inches of rain fell.

Taking the same 15-day period in June for the past five years, much variation is shown, beginning with a rainfall of only .17 of an inch in June, 1921, and jumping to 3.45 inches in 1922.

The five-year period as a whole presents a slight excess, showing how the weather even up in a term of years. The total rainfall for the periods in the past five years was 122.37, or an average for each period from January 1 to June 18 of 24.47 inches. The normal rainfall for the period is 24.33, indicating an excess of .14 of an inch.

Following is the 15-day rainfall in June for the past five years: June, 1928, 3.45 inches; June, 1929, 1.56; June, 1930, 1.25; June, 1931, .17; June, 1932, 3.00; June, 1933, 2.68; June, 1934, 3.99.

Following is the rainfall for the past five years from January 1 to June 18: 1928, 28.86 inches; 1929, 40.33; 1930, 19.86; 1931, 4.74; 1932, 9.94; 1933, 10.34, and 1934, 11.10.

The 1931 period showed the smallest rainfall with only 4.74 inches. The 1933 deficiency was 3.45 inches.

Policeman Called Into Station And Shot by Masked Man

MATAWAN, N. J., June 18.—(AP)—A white-masked stranger in a hunting coat and cap seated himself at the chief's desk in police headquarters early today, pressed the button of a signal light that summoned Patrolman John Flood from his beat and as the rookie cop entered opened fire on him with a .38-caliber revolver.

The first bullet hit the wall behind Flood. Startled by the suddenness of the attack and the odd appearance of the man at the desk, he drew his service revolver and began shooting.

It was all over in a few seconds. The white-masked man emptied his revolver and fled through a rear door. Flood, wounded in the head critically, dropped to the floor. Then with a mighty effort he dragged himself to a fire alarm box and sounded a call for help.

When Police Chief Edwin C. Sloat and a fireman reached headquarters they found Flood, who is 35 and married, lying near a telephone booth, still conscious. They took him to Matawan hospital and there he related the sketchy story of the attack.

He had no idea who the masked man was, he said. He had been patrolling his beat—the lone policeman

A guard was kept everywhere against wastage of water.

COMMISSION ASSAILS MISSISSIPPI LYING

The headquarters of the commission on interracial co-operation here Monday made public a letter from five Mississippi women to Governor Sennett Connor recommending that the next legislative enact a law that would automatically remove from office any officer from whom a prisoner is taken and lynched.

The letter was an outgrowth of a double lynching in Quitman county, Mississippi, on June 8.

It said the sheriff could have reached a jail well before nightfall and that, according to the report of the district attorney, though it was known that the citizens of the county were aroused, the prisoners were taken into the section where the alleged crime was committed.

The letter also said that District Attorney Greer Rice Jr., reported the case closed two hours after the bodies were cut down. It asked for a "re-opening of this case for the purpose of clearing up these points which must appear in all law-abiding citizens as in need of further investigation."

FIFTY PIANOS—A piano carnival featuring an ensemble of 50 pianos and 112 pianists under the auspices of the University of Tulsa School of Fine Arts will be heard over the WGST-Columbia network today from 9:30 to 9:45 o'clock.

Under the direction of Boyd R. Ringo and Helen Colburn Ringo, directors of the university's piano department, the largest piano ensemble ever gathered together in the United States, so far as is known, will present Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," Schubert's "Marche Militaire" and Nevin's "Country Dance." The actual broadcast will mark the climax of an elaborate concert to be presented in Tulsa's 8,000-seat Coliseum.

The carnival's 112 pianists are students in the university's piano department and are being trained for their program in four groups of different age and ability levels. The two-fold purpose of the broadcast is to demonstrate the practicability of teaching piano students of the same approximate ability in large groups within limited periods and to introduce to the public the concert possibilities of large ensemble piano work.

BASEBALL—A play-by-play description of the Cracker-New Orleans diamond hit today will be broadcast over WGST.

KOLAR—The Detroit Symphony orchestra, director Victor Kolar, will present another program of lighter classics over WGST today from 2 to 3 p. m.

Kolar's first offering will be the brilliant oriental "March and Cortège" from Goldmark's "The Queen of Sheba." He will also conduct "Under the Linden" from Massenet's suite, "Alaskan Scenes" by Saint-Saens; two compositions, "Souvenir" and "Pan-American," by Victor Herbert, and a waltz, "Gold and Silver," by Lehár. The program will close with the ray finale to Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" symphony.

EARLY BIRDS—A new program to go on the air at 6 o'clock tomorrow will take a bow today. The talent in the broadcast includes Lew Childre, the boy from Alabama, and Bob and Joe, the Lone Star cowboys.

Pittman Club Formed By Bartow Citizens

CARTERSVILLE, June 18.—Organization of a "Pittman for Governor" club in Bartow county was completed at a meeting held at the courthouse here Monday afternoon. Every district in the county is represented on the committee and some of the leading citizens of Bartow have already enrolled. Chairman Warren Tinsley, mayor of Cartersville, has announced. Besides enrolling citizens of the county, plans were laid to organize a mammoth motorcade of local citizens to go down to Warm Springs for Judge Pittman's address there July 4.

Judge Pittman addressed the gathering here Monday afternoon and declared indications pointed to his overwhelming nomination in the primary of September 12. Citizens in all parts of Georgia are writing and wiring him invitations to address groups in their communities, he said, and a definite date has been fixed for a monster rally at Augusta on the evening of Friday, June 29. Judge Pittman said he had received such positive assurance of his strength in Bartow and surrounding counties he would leave the carrying of them to his friends and devote his time to other sections of Georgia from now until the primary.

WOMAN, JAILED, CLAIMS RUM SOLD TO FEED CHILDREN

Claiming that she sold whisky to support her two children, a woman who gave the name of Mrs. M. R. White, 26, of 424 Adams street, N. E., was arrested by Lieutenant W. H. Andrews and Lieutenant E. S. Acree Monday afternoon in connection with the seizure of 18 cartons of Rye whisky in her home.

L. A. McDuff, 21, son of John A. McDuff, a lawyer, also was taken into custody at his address on Adams street. Mrs. White told the officers her husband was killed two months ago in an automobile accident on West Peachtree street, and that since his death she had been forced to deal in whisky to provide a living for herself and her two children, aged 5 and 7 years. Mrs. White and McDuff are held for preliminary hearing in recorder's court.

Miss Polly Fountain, 27, of Raleigh, N. C., sister of Mrs. T. F. Mallette, 1233 Briarcliff place, N. W., was fatally injured in an automobile accident in Baltimore Monday.

Miss Fountain was killed when the car in which she was riding, with William W. McNeill Jr., 26, of Raleigh, failed to make a turn on the road between Baltimore and Washington and crashed into some mail boxes. McNeill was injured but not seriously. The couple were returning from Washington to Baltimore, where Miss Fountain was visiting a sister.

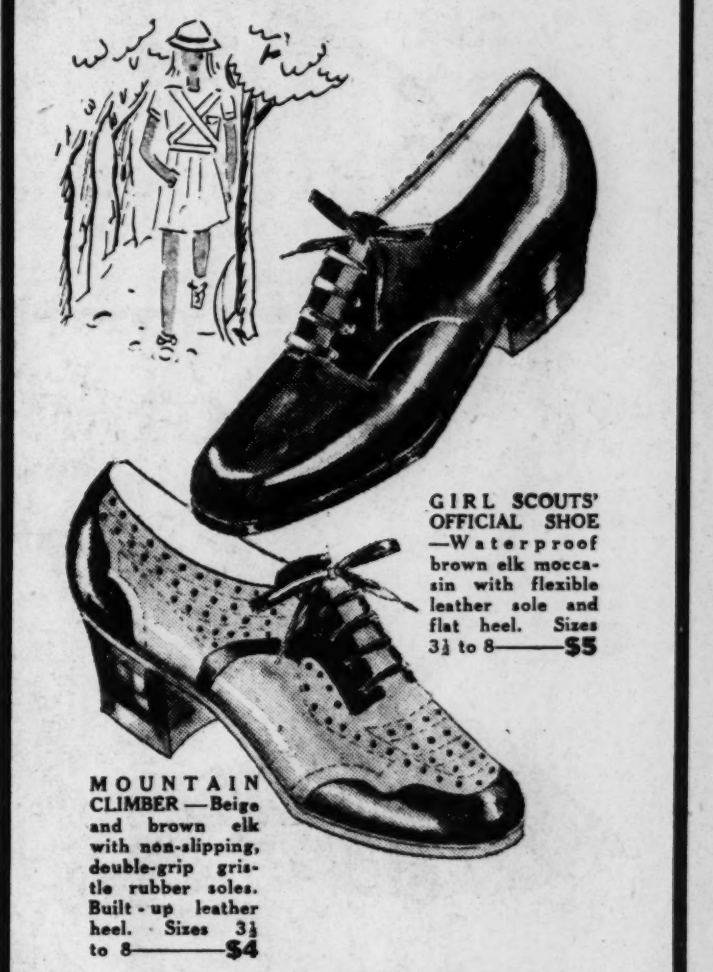

She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Mallette; Mrs. L. G. Richardson and Mrs. R. E. Powell, Washington, and Mrs. F. D. McCauley, of Baltimore. Mrs. Fountain is the wife of R. E. Powell, formerly of The Constitution.

SHOES—SECOND FLOOR

Tormented for Five Years with Dandruff. Healed by Cuticura.

"For nearly five years I was tormented with dandruff. My scalp itched and burned and became very sore and red from scratching. My hair became thin and dry and fell out in handfuls, and the dandruff scaled off and could be seen on my clothing.

"I had lost all hope of ever being healed. A friend told me about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I sent for a free sample. The first application stopped the itching so I bought more, and I used only one cake of Cuticura Soap with two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. M. L. Carruthers, Jetersville, Va., Aug. 23, 1933.

Scalp 25c. Ointment 25c and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. One sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. J, Malden, Mass."

It pays to be lazy. No one, to my knowledge, has ever accused me of being endowed with a surplus of physical energy. Note that I am implying that I have plenty of mental energy, which is only reasonable, for I use very little of it and certainly should have an adequate reserve supply. Being a strong conversationalist, I believe in saving my resources as much as possible. They may be needed some day.

To get back to the major premise, however, the advantages of physical laziness are manifold. In the first place one is never likely to have the back of one's neck blistered by climbing Stone Mountain on a hot day. One will inevitably seek the moss-carpeted shades at the foot of the mountain, where there are dozens of birds to be seen and heard, where a succession of wild flowers keeps one on the alert—mentally, of course—for fear of missing one species, and where most interesting fish can be observed if one can only be lazy enough not to move at all.

Then, when the sun is safely out of the way, or at least has lost the vehement power of high-angle rays, one will stroll toward the top of the mountain, although ever getting there would be too much to expect. There was a time when I prided myself on being able to wear anyone out climbing the slippery slopes of granite, but that was before I found nighthawks were easily watched from about the level of the tree-line, or perhaps a bit lower.

Until the other night I had never heard a nighthawk put on the booming performance in Georgia except in two places: Stone Mountain and various spots in Rabun county. It was Saturday that I saw and heard the rushing sound replaced the walls of steel and concrete with towering walls of green; imaginary moist, cool breezes replaced the blistering stillness of downtown Atlanta, only to fade and disappear sickeningly with the disappearance of the sound.

There's nothing for it, friends, but to go out to the bald dome of granite and listen for the booming nighthawks. From the vantage of the tree line one can watch the birds fluttering over the plain below, on a level with one's eyes. Similar situations I have seen before, but none near enough to Atlanta to make it worth while for you to go to. Yet, if you are looking for amusement and diversion, I know of no better way to find it than on Stone Mountain, at that old but ever-new occupation of watching the nighthawks, waiting for their all too rare booming on the wing.

GEORGE A. KNABE, 42, EX-ATLANTAN, PASSES

George A. Knabe, 42, one-time commander of the East Point American Legion Post and for many years a leader in affairs of the Atlanta Typographical Union, died Sunday night in Miami, Fla., where he has been employed for the last 18 months as a printer by the Miami Daily News. He had undergone an operation for acute appendicitis.

Familiarly known to many friends here as "Heinie," he worked for more than a decade in the composing room of the Georgian and Sunday American before his removal to Florida. Mr. Knabe's body will be returned here for funeral services and burial. In addition to his wife and three stepsons, all of Miami, he is survived by one brother, William Knabe, of Atlanta.

Talmadge Tells Grocers They Should Ask Reduction in Rates Charged by Railroads

Members of the Quality Service Store organization in 11 states gathered for their fourth annual convention at the Ansley Monday. In the group, left to right, are H. T. Swann, of Roanoke, sales and promotion manager; Mayor Key and Governor Talmadge, who welcomed the visitors, and W. F. Burton, of Augusta, president of the Q. S. S. organization. The convention will continue through Wednesday morning.

The fourth annual convention of the Quality Service Stores opened at the Ansley hotel Monday. The 300 or more delegates attending were welcomed by Governor Talmadge and Mayor Key, and went into a session that will last through Wednesday morning.

Following the morning session, the visitors were guests at a barbeque types of merchandise, and made their sale more difficult.

Greetings were extended by L. A. Welch, secretary of the Atlanta unit, and W. G. Hastings, a member of council and a director of publicity of the hotel.

Roy Green, president of the Nashville group, and J. V. Young, manager of the Richmond unit, made responses to the addresses of welcome. Roy Callaway, of the Kraft-Phenix Company, delivered an address which was followed by a general discussion on the code. The invocation was offered by Rabbi Harry Epstein.

Great interest was shown by the delegates in the food exhibits shown by nationally known manufacturers in the hotel lobby and civic room.

This morning's session will be featured by an address by W. L. Mitchell, executive assistant in charge of Georgia NRA activities, on the grocers' code and its effect on the trade.

Max Cuba, accountant of the Quality Service and Atlanta Savings Stores, will speak on the history of the Atlanta unit, and Henry T. Swann, of the general office at Roanoke, Va., will offer a summary of the year's work of the organization.

A noon luncheon for the ladies at Peacock Alley today will be followed by a sightseeing tour.

A business meeting, including the election of officers, will be held on Wednesday morning.

The barbeque was such an elaborate affair that enough food was left over to feed 200 people. This was turned over to the city relief center for the needy.

FLORIDAN NAMED RECREATION HEAD FOR CITY PARKS

Supervised recreation at 20 municipally operated play centers was assured Monday when George L. Fischer, general manager of Atlanta parks, announced that the federal government through the FERA is co-operating in the program.

August Fischer, of Winter Haven, Fla., has been named recreation director, and a training school for directors will be opened at 9 o'clock this morning at the Y. M. C. A. building. The school will continue through Friday.

There also will be volunteers from the Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and Girl Reserves to aid the two directors of each of the parks selected.

The play season will open officially Monday morning. The centers will be open from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning and from 2:30 to 7 each afternoon and night except Saturday and Sunday.

A committee of social agencies, headed by Hal Hentz, chairman, is co-operating in the work.

ALEXANDER W. SPENCE DIES IN DALLAS, TEXAS

Alexander White Spence, a brother of Mrs. J. H. Hines, of 2505 Rivers road, Atlanta, died June 14 at his residence in Dallas, Texas. Funeral services and interment were held there Friday.

Mr. Spence, who was well known in Atlanta, was a prominent lawyer and educator. He was president of the board of education in Dallas for several years and also was an officer of the Dallas Bar Association. He was a member of a well-known Texas law firm and was on the board of directors of the Commission for Interracial Co-operation. He received his education from the University of Texas and Columbia University.

Mrs. Hines attended the funeral services and will return to Atlanta some time this week. Mr. Spence also is survived by his mother, Mrs. Wendel Spence; another sister, Mrs. Linda Brown, of Columbus, Ohio; and a brother, Charles Spence, of St. Louis, Missouri.

LOAN "TEST CASE" TO BE HEARD TODAY

The supreme court today is scheduled to hear arguments on the "test case" filed to determine the right of the board of regents to accept a loan and grant of $2,500,000 for the improvement of the units of the university system.

The board has agreed to the terms of a PWA proposal that it pledge the assets of the units, outside regular appropriations, to repay the loan, providing the action is approved by the courts.

The state department of law sought a friendly injunction, which was denied by Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court. An appeal was taken to the supreme court and it is this appeal which will be argued today. Assistant Attorney-General B. D. Murphy will argue the state's case and Harold Hirsch will represent the regents.

"DIRECT APPEAL" ACT IS RULED UNLAWFUL

The supreme court Monday held that the 1932 act of the general assembly giving attorneys the right to appeal cases directly from the municipal court to the court of appeals is unconstitutional.

The high court held that cases appealed from the municipal courts of the state must be taken up through the superior courts. The decision is said to affect about 50 cases appealed from the municipal courts of Atlanta, Macon and Savannah.

In its decision the supreme court held that the court of appeals was provided by the constitution and its powers could not be changed by act of the legislature.

ASSOCIATION FORMED BY COTTON HANDLERS

Warehouse and Compress Men Seek Co-operation Under Code.

The Georgia Warehouse and Compress Association, representing the cotton warehouses and compresses of the state, was formed at a meeting in the United States agricultural department in the new postoffice building Monday afternoon.

L. E. Floyd, of LaGrange, was elected president; Ferdinand Phinizy, of Augusta, vice president, and T. E. Fletcher, of Cordele, secretary and treasurer. The following directors were elected: First district, R. C. Neeley, Waynesboro; second district, J. P. Champion, Albany; third, T. E. Fletcher, Cordele; fourth, L. E. Floyd, LaGrange; fifth, not yet selected; sixth, H. R. Moffett, Dublin; seventh, B. F. Archer, Rome; eighth, J. E. Howell, Ocala; ninth, R. S. Johnson, Jefferson; tenth, W. B. Moss, Athens.

The main object of the organization is to bring about co-operation and understanding between the 600 warehouses and the compresses in Georgia which handle the state's cotton crop. The specific cause is the need of a serious consideration of the proposed code which, the officers said, has objectionable features. They said it would require the co-operation of the industry to bring about an adjustment. Warehouse and compress owners are urged to get in touch with their officers and directors who have a copy of the code and can point out its objectionable features.

Light should be softened before it reaches your Eyes

Surprising as it may seem, the eyes of seven of every ten need correction of the "seeing" qualities. A large percentage of these eyes are also extra sensitive to light. They require the elimination of excess light (glare) and when this is not provided, they sap your nervous energy in trying to protect themselves.

Fatigue, headaches, and even more serious disorders may result from this drain of vital energy. When sensitive eyes are protected against glare, the whole body benefits.

Let us tell you how we can make your regular glasses with Soft-Lite lenses which absorb glare, and conserve Vision Vitality.

"B. C." Relieves Periodical Pains In Three Minutes

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

"B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10¢ and 25¢ packages, wherever drugs are sold. (adv.)

100 Georgia Postmasters Meet in Atlanta, Are Extended Greetings by Talmadge, Key

Among the officers of the Georgia branch of the National League of District Postmasters, in convention at the Henry Grady hotel, are shown above, from left to right: J. A. Crook, third vice president, Pendergrass; H. C. Hays, president, Mansfield; Mrs. L. Bertie Rushing, first vice president, Glennville; E. A. Meeks, national president, Nicholls; and Miss Mellic Pitts, secretary and treasurer, Newborn. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Mayor James L. Key welcomed more than a hundred delegates of the Georgia branch of the National League of District Postmasters, in convention at the Henry Grady hotel Monday. The postmasters also received an informal greeting from Governor Eugene Talmadge, who invited them to visit him either "at the capitol or at the mansion."

John F. Bradley, superintendent of the railway mail service, promised the postmasters the co-operation of his department in all matters. He asked that all irregularities of mis-sent letters be reported to him.

Colonel Worthington P. Wachter, of Hagerstown, Md., great incoherence of the Improved Order of Red Men, arrived in Atlanta Monday to be the principal speaker at the great concil of the fifty-fifth Georgia assembly and the convocation of the Order of Pochontas today and Wednesday. He was entertained Monday night by a committee from the Atlanta groups.

The centennial ceremonial of the order will be held tonight at the Red Men's wigwam, at which Colonel Wachter will deliver the address. He is a leading Maryland attorney.

A barbecue will be served at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. State, county and city officials are among those who will be inducted into the order in a large class at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

Lang R. Taylor, Augusta, is great sachem of the Georgia order and Mrs. Naomi Medlock, Atlanta, is the great Pochontas.

Mr. Bradley also spoke favorably of the new airmail system which will reach 19 cities and four states not included in the former routes. He praised Postmaster-General Farley for his reorganization of the department.

A comparison of European postoffice systems with that of the United States was made by J. W. Cole, Atlanta inspector in charge. He pointed out that English and German service is more efficient because the territory covered is smaller and because compliance with postal regulations is required of the public.

Other addresses were made by John J. Martin, assistant postmaster of Atlanta; Dr. Irvine S. Ingram, of West Georgia College, Genoa; C. G. Clark, supervisor of the Atlanta postoffice, and E. A. Meeks, of Nicholls, national president of the organization.

Election of officers and reports of the various committees are scheduled for today, the last day of the convention. A special feature in the day's program is a question and answer forum during which the postmasters will ask each other "twisters" that come up in daily mail delivery.

Supreme Court Hears Hurt Building Appeal

The appeal of the Atlanta Realty Company and the Hurt Building Corporation against the decision of the Fulton superior court permitting the bondholders to foreclose on the Hurt building was taken up Monday by the state supreme court.

The bondholders are represented locally by the Atlanta Trust Company. The bondholders filed a foreclosure petition some months ago but it was contested by the Hurt building interests on the ground of "usury."

James A. Branch, representing the Hurt building interests, made his argument at Monday's session and E. Warren Moise will argue today on behalf of the bondholders.

The Hurt building is now being operated under two receivers, Ronald Ransom and Walter C. Hendrix. If the high court approves the decision of the superior court it will pass into control of the bondholders who will set up a new operating company.

The litigation now before the supreme court does not involve the sale of bonds which was halted by court order several months ago.

U. S. LAUNCHES DRIVE ON PREDATORY ANIMALS

Carlyle Carr, of the federal bureau of biological survey, has begun an active campaign to control predatory animals in Georgia. Working in co-operation with the state game and fish department, Mr. Carr has mailed several hundred questionnaires to persons in all sections of the state seeking information on the distribution of animals that have been killing game birds and destroying crops.

The letters are going to five groups: Farmers, sportsmen, county agents, game wardens and miscellaneous groups which include bird clubs and Audubon societies. Listed among the predatory animals are mink, muskrat, weasels, stray cats, rats and other small rodents.

William Lake Addison, 22, of Jackson, Miss., leading honor student in the 1934 graduating class of the Georgia Tech school of architecture, has been awarded one of two $500 scholarships given annually by Princeton University in nation-wide collegiate competition, it was announced Monday.

The award, which was based this year on the best design of "A Summer School of the Theater," also exempts the winners from tuition charges and other fees at Princeton and admits them to the graduate school of architecture there.

Young Addison, the son of Mrs. Eugene Addison, 237 Longino street, Jackson, also has been awarded the medal of the American Institute of Architects for having had the highest scholastic average during his four years at Tech. He also won the Coleman cash award, and was offered a tuition scholarship at Harvard.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 18.—(P)—The Rev. John Williams Sr., 41, negro, of Trenton, and two of his children were killed early today when their auto crashed into the rear end of a truck on the Brunswick pike in North Brunswick township, near here.

NATION'S PUBLIC DEBT HITS $27,005,438,125

Net Cash Balance of $2,759- 605,523.25 Reported in Treasury.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(P)—A new peak for the nation's gross public debt—$27,005,438,125—was recorded today at the treasury.

Mid-month financing helped boost the figure to a new high, as shown on today's treasury statement covering all dealings up to June 15. The former peak was reached on August 31, 1919, when a gross of $26,596,701,648 was written down.

The final shore to a new height came with a financing operation amounting to slightly more than $403,700,000 in notes and bonds, announced a week ago.

As against this gross debt the treasury reported a net cash balance of $2,759,523.25 in its coffers, whereas it had only $1,118,100,534.76 in cash balance when the former peak was reached.

The day's treasury statement also revealed extraordinarily heavy receipts. This was due to an inflow of $1,351,450,000 from sale of government bonds augmented by $17,411,191 from the second installment of income taxes.

250 Visiting Jaycees Entertained On Way to Convention at Miami

An influx of more than 250 delegates en route to the national Junior Chamber of Commerce convention at Miami swelled the ranks of Jaycees in Atlanta Monday. The delegates were guests of the local unit for a "concentration party."

Clifford Hendrix, president of the Atlanta organization, welcomed the visitors at a luncheon at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. His offer of "southern hospitality and Georgia peaches" was greeted with loud applause from the guests.

During the meal the Jaycees sang and cheered for their respective towns, which ranged from Los Angeles to Kalamazoo. The music furnished by Kirk Devore and his orchestra was drowned out more than once by outbursts of local patriotism.

The delegates were welcomed to the city by Mayor James L. Key, who declared himself thoroughly in favor of the progressive idealism on which the organization is based. After Mayor Key's address, George P. Hamilton, state treasurer, spoke representing Governor Eugene Talmadge, who was unable to attend. He paid tribute to the leadership of Mr. Hendrix in Atlanta, saying that he typified the spirit of progress for which the organization stands.

Duncan Peck, president of the Atlanta Junior Chamber in 1933, introduced the local members present.

After the luncheon the Jaycees were taken on a sight-seeing tour of the city from Emory University to the federal prison. They were entertained during the evening at a dance at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, to which 500 Atlanta belles had been invited so that the delegates could get acquainted with real southern puchitude.

Miss Shepperson said that the classes would begin June 20 and that 41 white persons and 16 negroes had accepted enrollment.

The administrator also said that 16 workers enrolled in the Atlanta School of Social Work will be sent to the University of Georgia Summer school

U. S., BRITAIN OPEN NAVY DISCUSSIONS

MacDonald Presents Views On Necessity for World Peace.

LONDON, June 18.—(P)—American and British delegations sat down today in the first of a series of conversations preliminary to the 1935 naval conference, with the Americans in the role of listeners.

The opening session was devoted principally to a long speech by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald on the necessity of world peace.

Neither group presented any specific plan and it was learned authoritatively that the Americans do not intend to advance any plan during these preliminary discussions. The Americans feel, it was stated, that they are here at the specific invitation of the British and intend to listen more than talk, although working in complete co-operation toward arranging the conference agenda on a fair basis.

The American idea, furthermore, is said to be that the United States will present no plan of its own at the 1935 conference and that President Roosevelt will make no formal appeal, as some British quarters profess to believe.

Since the British did not broach any specific proposals, the delegates decided not to meet again until Wednesday.

The PWA funds in Georgia will be expended on 120 projects. Mr. Johnston said the PWA was spending an average of $60,000 weekly on non-federal projects at present, giving direct employment to approximately 700 men. These figures will rise, he said, as additional contracts are awarded.

The PWA completed work on four projects during the year, the Atlanta waterworks, Folkston waterworks, Alma High school and the Varnell school.

REORGANIZATION ASKED UNDER AMENDED ACT

The first petitions under Section 77-B, an amendment to the national bankruptcy act adopted by congress on June 7, were filed in the federal court Monday. The amendment gives the right to corporations in receivership or other litigation to ask for a general reorganization.

One of the petitions was filed by John B. Colonbet and other creditors of the Mortgage Bond Company. They recited that the company had $1,500,000 in bonds outstanding which had been guaranteed by the National Surety Company, which later went into litigation.

The surety company, the creditors asserted, is now undergoing reorganization in New York, a process that would be helped by similar action on the part of the Mortgage Bond Company.

Rose M. Foley and other creditors of the Franklin Mortgage Company filed a similar petition on the same grounds.

Manning told the recorder when the Almighty sent forth his missionaries he granted them the right to preach and that he had his permit from the highest source.

Callaway ruled against the Five Points jurisdiction and fined Manning $12, then suspended payment.

$1,800 in Cash Prizes!

By THE SAYINGAME EDITOR.

After the overture completed by the first announcement of The Constitution's Sayingame, bridge, chess, euchre, lotto and other forms of diversion evidently bowed gracefully and retired to their places of refuge, to make way for the entrance of a star who won and held the hearts of the public long before the rearing of the ancient pyramids of Egypt. The old and the new idol is the Sayingame, favorite of kings and populates through the ages, and now, garbed in modern dress, even more popular than of old.

Every help and every convenience is being extended to readers who are entering the Sayingame belatedly. Those who have delayed until now will receive complete co-operation, and will not be handicapped in any way, inasmuch as the back pictures and reference list of sayings are free. It is entirely possible for a newcomer into the Sayingame to carry off the first prize of $1,800; the second prize of $400; the third prize of $100; the fourth prize of $75; the fifth prize of $25; or any of the other rich cash awards. No discouraging conditions are a part of the contest, which is open to both subscribers and non-subscribers. Contestants are not asked to turn in subscriptions, get votes, or to do anything more than find the old sayings that fit the series of pictures.

In addition to the purely financial benefit to be derived from the contest by those who are counted among the winners, the pictures have a decided inspirational value. Even those who do not win a prize will feel compensated for their efforts.

6 Britons Kidnapped By Chinese Pirates

SHANGHAI, June 18.—(AP)—Six British citizens, including two British naval officers, were kidnapped together with 20 Chinese by pirates this afternoon from a British commercial steamer off the mouth of the Yellow river.

The sea wolves took over the ship, the Shuntien, which was on its way from Tientsin to Shanghai, apparently after boarding it in Tientsin and awaiting the opportunity to overpower the crew and passengers.

The capture was effected without opposition.

The pirates forced the captives into a fleet of five junks which stood by. Besides the captives, the pirates removed all the most valuable merchandise.

Then the steamer proceeded to Chefoo.

The Britons captured, besides the two naval officers, were one commercial traveler and three members of the steamer's crew.

Two Balances... EVERY DAY!

"WE STRIKE two balances in our bank every day" was the rather odd remark which a CITIZENS & SOUTHERN bank officer made me recently. Naturally I awaited a further explanation.

"Handling money should not be the only consideration of a modern bank," he continued. "Handling people is equally as important. The first balance we make is of course a check on our correctness in handling the financial transactions of the day. The second balance is a check on the service we have rendered our customers."

"A good bank is intimately associated with the destinies of its customers in their business and personal affairs. We regard every customer as a friend. His success is our success—his failure hurts us also. That which we can do to help him, also helps us. Whether it be the check with the customers' signature, the line before the teller's window, the business man at the officer's desk or the widow in the trust department—the balance to be struck at the end of the day is simply this—was the customer helped?"

And that is unquestionably the reason why more than 120,000 customers say—

"My bank is THE CITIZENS & SOUTHERN."

If you want to enjoy real cooking pleasure, bring your kitchen up to date with a modern gas range. Smart lines and color combinations appeal to kitchen pride... Insulated ovens save gas and keep your kitchen cool... Self-lighting does away with the bother of striking matches... Automatic oven heat control insures a constant temperature at just the degree needed... Four simmer-speed burners supply a multitude of heats—one for every slightest turn of the valve.

You may have your choice of two De Luxe gas ranges—A ROPER and a MAGIC CHEF—for the very small amount of $1.25 DOWN AND $1.25 A MONTH. See them at our nearest store, or ask your favorite plumber.

Bank and Monetary Systems Revolutionized by Congress

Many Changes Effectuated To Bring Nation Out of Serious and Chaotic Financial Crisis.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Called into session by the gravest and most chaotic financial crisis the nation has known, the seventy-third congress adjourned tonight after revolutionizing the American banking and monetary systems.

It met in special session with every bank in the nation closed and billions of dollars in hoarding. Its very first act was to give statutory validity to the order of President Roosevelt which had shut the doors of the institutions.

Almost its last enactment, too, dealt with the banks, providing a partial government guarantee for home-building loans. In between was a long series of laws radically altering the basis of the country's currency, providing government insurance for bank deposits and imposing dozens of other major and minor reforms.

On President Roosevelt's second day in office he closed by edict what few banks had been able to withstand the strain of widespread panic, banking holidays and ordered all gold and gold certificates returned to the government.

Four days later the special session began. In seven hours it disproved the contention of some that democracy cannot function quickly to meet emergency by enacting a law confirming the chief executive's orders and giving him authority to open the banks when and as it became possible to do so.

Argument ran high as to whether the events of the first Roosevelt week had removed the country from the gold standard, but the administration left no doubts in the situation a short while later by legislation prohibiting exports of gold and invalidating the gold payment clause of all existing contracts.

The drive for inflation meanwhile was bearing hard upon the administration. Led by western silver state senators it reached its legislative culmination in the "Thomas amendment," a rider to the farm act giving the president vast discretionary power to expand the currency.

The measure authorized him in his discretion to reduce the gold content of the dollar by a maximum of 50 per cent, to have issued $5,000,000,000 of non-interest bearing United States notes to repay maturing federal obligations and to circulate as legal tender and to accept silver in payment on the war debts to a maximum of $200,000,000.

The measure was subsequently continued for an additional year with the maximum increased to $5,000,000,000.

With the exception of the first emergency banking act, the passage of all these measures was attended by vigorous opposition from conservative elements in congress, with the fight centering especially upon the Thomas amendment, which brought out the first organized republican opposition to the Roosevelt measures.

The interim between the adjournment of the special session and the beginning of the regular session which ended today found much of this legislation carried into effect and also saw several experimental administration efforts to make money more plentiful and increase commodity prices.

The government security purchase provision of the Thomas amendment was made operative almost immediately. The theory was that with the reserve banks buying United States bonds in huge quantities cash would replace securities in the vaults of member banks, and lead to a more liberal lending policy. However, the effects of the program were minor and the purchases dwindled to zero in the late fall.

War Debt Payment. Foreign governments took advantage of the silver war debt payment clause in their token payments of last June. Some $13,000,000 in silver was received against which the government, according to the law, silver certificates were issued.

Meanwhile, the administration began its gold purchasing program, setting a fixed price for the metal when newly mined, a figure above the world price. The purchases were later extended to buying gold abroad, through the Reconstruction Corporation, in an effort to keep foreign exchange, at what were considered advantageous levels.

The theory as expounded by Professor George F. Warren, the president's chief monetary adviser at the time, was that if the dollar price of gold were increased, forces would be set in operation which would automatically raise the prices of commodities. The plan was only partially successful.

Accordingly, the administration decided upon further measures and with the meeting of congress in January, set out to take advantage of the dollar devaluation provision of the Thomas amendment. President Roosevelt called members of the banking committees of both houses to the White House for a discussion of his plan.

Further Requests. The next day he sent to congress a message asking the authority to take title to all the nation's monetary gold, including the last stores of the federal reserve banks.

The theory was that if 60 per cent of then present value be placed upon any reduction in the gold content of the dollar.

That after the gold had been taken into the treasury and the dollar devalued, the resulting "profits" be used to create a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to be used in adjusting foreign exchange levels.

Congressional conservatives loudly protested against what they considered currency tinkering and a blow to sound money. They argued that the whole procedure was unconstitutional, but the legislation passed by large majorities. There were just 40 votes against it in the house and 23 in the senate.

Devaluation Action. With the signing of the measure, the president by proclamation, increased the statutory dollar value of an ounce of gold from $20.67 to $35, a devaluation to 59.06 per cent of the dollar. In addition he declared that the government was ready to buy and sell gold abroad at that price, in accordance with the necessities of world economy.

Treasury experts explained that the United States had returned to the gold standard, calling an international gold billion standard. Several months later the stabilization fund was put to work.

Economists say it is difficult as yet to gauge the results of the program, but they point to the fact that the foreign exchange value of the dollar has been kept very stable by comparison with its former wild gyrations, and that prices have been slowly edging upward.

Nevertheless, the inflationists were still dissatisfied and combined with senators from silver-producing states to enact further monetary legislation toward the close of the session. The form of the measure was agreed upon in conferences with the president. Its provisions:

Conferees' Report Quickly Indorsed by Vote of Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The last important piece of legislation desired by the administration before adjournment—the housing bill—was agreed upon today by senate and house conferees.

The work of printing the final version of the measure was hurriedly completed and the bill sped to both chambers for enactment.

This was speedily effected by both the senate and the house.

The program is dependent upon to stimulate the lagging construction and heavy goods industries by providing a spur to home modernization and some building.

The revised bill closely followed the lines of the plan sent to congress by administration experts.

The conferees eliminated a house proposal which would have provided a $200,000,000 fund for loans to building and loan and similar institutions.

Billions Added. The senate and house, however, added $1,000,000,000 to enable the Home Owners Loan Corporation to guarantee the present volume of existing indebtedness and this was retained.

The conferees agreed the program contemplated should be directed by a single administrator, instead of the administration proposed in the house bill.

Harry L. Hopkins, the federal relief administrator, probably will be chosen for the task.

The immediate result of the bill is expected to be a spurt of activity in home repair and modernization through a section of the bill which guarantees 20 per cent of loans for that purpose.

In other words, should a building and loan, or other institution, lend $100,000 for reconstruction purposes, the government will assure that there will be no less than $20,000 of that amount. The limit of such guarantees is $300,000.

The bill also sets up a corporation to insure long-term amortized mortgages.

The government operating on the mutual principle, will collect from the borrowers fees to build up the insurance fund. The mortgages to be insured are to be insured up to 80 per cent of their appraised value.

In many instances, the Home Owners Loan Corporation is unable to help heavily burdened mortgagors because they have not defaulted or creditors have refused to agree.

The bill provides that $1,000,000,000 may be used to insure existing mortgages up to 70 per cent of their value. $1,000,000,000 limitation was also placed on new mortgages to be insured.

Center of Fight. Much of the controversy centered about national mortgage associations which might be established under the bill.

The building and loan associations complained that these would drive them out of business through unfair competition.

The provision for the mortgage associations was retained but they will be unable to lend directly to home owners. Their purpose is to provide a liquid market for the new mortgages contemplated by the bill.

The conferees retained a provision limiting the amount which might be spent for individual slum clearance projects but raised the limit from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Mrs. Dall Leaves 'Nevada Home' For Unannounced Destination

CAL-NEVA, Nev., June 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, establishing residence to divorce her husband, Curtis B. Dall, left her Lake Tahoe home for an unannounced destination this afternoon.

She drove in an automobile owned by Samuel Platt, her Reno attorney. The car was accompanied only by a chauffeur.

Since her arrival yesterday President Roosevelt's only daughter has maintained silence regarding details of her suit.

Her two children, "Sister" and "Buddy," remained indoors with a federal secret service man and a maid.

They are living at a quarter of a mile from the lake shore on the Nevada side of the lake, just a few feet from the California state line.

Meanwhile Mrs. Dall's husband and he did not care to make any public statement regarding divorce reports.

The announcement said: "I do not care to make any public statement regarding matters of a strictly personal nature. I am pleased to refer you to Henry S. Hooker, 50 Broadway, who is Mrs. Dall's attorney for any statement which he may see fit to make."

(Signed) "CURTIS B. DALL."

At his office, Hooker said he had no statement to make.

It was not known definitely whether Mrs. Dall expects to remain for her entire Nevada stay of six weeks or more at Lake Tahoe.

The home in which she is now living, a modern log house, is located about a quarter of a mile from the lake shore and about two blocks from the Cal-Neva Lodge, famous night club where many wealthy divorce seekers gather.

Quintuplets Register Further Improvement

COVELL, Ont., June 18.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets, now three weeks old today and continued in satisfactory condition, despite a slight loss in weight by three of them.

Dr. A. R. Dufosse said he was not worried by a combined loss of 4-12 ounces since yesterday, inasmuch as the babies were eating well and weighed almost a pound more than they did last Monday.

The weight chart today, as compared with June 4, read as follows:

| | | | |
|---------|-------|-------|------|
| Yvonne | 38-14 | 44-12 | 6-14 |
| Annette | 36 | 40-12 | 4-12 |
| Cecile | 32 | 35-14 | 3-14 |
| Emile | 32 | 35-14 | 3-14 |
| Marie | 26 | 30-14 | 4-14 |

ROTARY'S 'FAULTS' SUBJECT OF STUDY BY 6 PROFESSORS

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP)—The Rotary Club, target of expert jousting and spirited defense as the prototype of the American Luncheon Club, called a half-dozen social scientists to study its "faults" in manners a year ago, and read their diagnosis today.

The six University of Chicago professors wrote a volume of criticism, both kind words and harsh, of Chicago Rotary—first and largest group.

On the two scores for which the luncheon clubs were kidded most by Sinclair Lewis, H. L. Mencken and other literary critics seemed to side with the critics.

They recommended, for example, that the club cut down back-slapping, handshaking and familiar conviviality in favor of more serious interests, recommending fellowship "not based on boyish fun making."

But they defended the profit motive in business as nothing to be ashamed of.

The six professors told the Rotarians that when a businessman talks about "service" he is really kidding himself. Instead of terms in this notion, "Babbitt," the experts called it "self-hypocrisy," probably unintentionally and recommended candor as a remedy.

3 CAROLINANS HELD IN BLIND MAN'S DEATH

LAURINBURG, N. C., June 18.—(AP)—Two cousins, Colin McKenzie, 25, and William McKenzie, 28, were held today in connection with the fatal stabbing of John P. Watts, blind 48-year-old mattress manufacturer, in a knife-battle yesterday. Their bonds were fixed at $5,000 and $2,500, respectively.

The McKenzies were seriously injured in the melee, were three others. John Watts, 19-year-old son of the slain man, and Frazier Hilton, 23, a son-in-law, were also injured by a coroner's jury in connection with the early morning knife battle. Watts and Hilton were seriously cut up.

Honeymoon of Counsel Delays Vallee Litigation

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—The merry-go-round of litigation concerning the domestic woes of Rudy Vallee and his estranged wife, Fay Webb Vallee, started up again today in supreme court to the accompaniment of bitter wrangling.

An authorization to the president to buy the huge quantities of silver necessary to reach this proportion in such quantities and at such times as he should deem advisable.

Efforts to hang a mandatory silver remonetization amendment onto the measure were defeated, with the representatives of the silver states combining with monetary conservatives to reject the proposals of the outright inflationists.

LABOR CONGRESS

Disputed Issues Keep Legislative Halls in Stir Almost to Last Hour

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Labor troubles—questions which harassed the administrative branch of government—perplexed the seventy-third congress almost to its closing hours.

In the final hours of Saturday congress passed a measure to give to the president powers designed to bestow on the government new rights to step in and seek settlement of conflicts.

Passage of the legislation was under the immediate pressure of climbing tide of strikes, the most immediate of which was the steel dispute. Redraft of Original.

The measure was the administration's redraft of an original labor disputes bill by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York. The bill was not against the administration substitute but on behalf of the Wagner bill. It was carried on not by Wagner, who supported the administration, but by Senator La Follette, independent republican of Wisconsin.

As it finally emerged from the law-making machinery, the bill gave the president power to name a board or boards to investigate any labor dispute and, if necessary, to hold secret elections to choose workers' representatives for collective bargaining.

The necessity for the legislation was found by its proponents in the argument over the power of the labor provision of the national industrial relations act to bring about collective bargaining.

Rail Pension Bill. A second labor measure, called by its advocates a testing ground for the general inauguration of a compulsory employee pension system, was approved near the close of the session with passage of the railway pension bill.

The measure was drafted to provide for retirement of aged employees, the pension to come from a fund to which both employer and employee contributed. The latter contributing twice as much as the worker.

The American Federation of Labor fought for the passage of a number of labor bills but directed its attention primarily to the original Wagner bill. The Wagner bill and the Connelly 30-hour week measure. Officials of the federation refused to approve the adding of a substitute for the Wagner bill.

Unemployment insurance legislation, principles of which were endorsed by members of the administration, particularly Secretary Perkins, failed to proceed beyond the committee stage. The legislation would have provided for the setting up of compulsory unemployment contribution systems, under the directing hand of governmental agencies.

Newest Grandchild To Fly To See F. D. R.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's youngest grandchild, less than two months old, is going to make an airplane trip from Fort Worth, Texas, to Hyde Park, N. Y., to see his grandfather.

This was revealed today by Mrs. Frances D. Roosevelt, who motored to her town house after a week-end in Lowell Park, N. Y.

The grandchild, Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Roosevelt, Jr., and was born May 9 at Fort Worth. The president and first lady have never seen her, and the visit also will be their first opportunity to become acquainted with their daughter-in-law, the former Ruth Goggins, of Fort Worth.

Hale, Thurston Lead Maine Primaries

PORTLAND, Maine, June 18.—(AP)—Alfred K. Ames, retired machanic, held a lead of nearly three to one over his nearest rival, Frank W. Carlton, of Woolwich, in a four-cornered fight for the republican gubernatorial nomination as close to one-third of the votes cast in today's Maine primary.

With 167 out of 632 precincts in the state reported, the vote was Ames, 5,937; Carlton, 2,581; Plin W. Page, Skowhegan, 1,800; Donald B. Frazier, Norway, 868.

United States Senator Frederick Hale, of Portland, seeking renomination by the G. O. P., ran nearly four to one over Louis A. Jack, Lib. "liberal."

Hale had 7,658 votes to Jack's 2,148, with 164 precincts tabulated. Today the democratic fight for the United States senate nomination, Paul C. Thurston, Bethel lumberman, and F. Harold Dubord, national committeeman from Waterville, fought neck-and-neck. Dubord, a lawyer, was running a poor third.

Thurston had 1,482 votes to Dubord's 1,295, with 164 precincts reported. Stevens had 532.

ARKANSAS UTILITY WINS TRIBUNAL TAX CASE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 18.—(AP)—The Arkansas supreme court held today the tax for support of the state fact-finding tribunal could be levied only on gross earnings as distinguished from gross receipts of a public utility.

Chief Justice Johnson, joined by two associates of the appellate body, dissented in a vigorous opinion in which he asserted the court majority had "nullified and destroyed the effectiveness of the tribunal."

The opinion was given in a case in which State Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman sought to collect a tax of $2 per 1,000 on the gross receipts of $407,588.83. The company contended that $2 of 1933—creating the tribunal—contemplated that the tax should be collected on gross earnings, which were shown to be $214,769.01. The company appealed the case from Sebastian circuit court and won a reversal.

Death of Delegate Mars Convention of Shrine

MINNEAPOLIS, June 18.—(AP)—Death slipped through the pre-convention safety of the 69th annual imperial council session of the Shrine today, to claim the life of Amos H. Finley, Greenville, Ala., as hands blurred greetings to Minneapolis, to the visiting nobles.

Ga. Congressmen Returning To Gird for Political Wars

Legislative Record of Men Seeking Renomination Is Open Book for Electorate of State.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The gavel rap which adjourned the epoch-making 73d congress, echoed all the way to Georgia today, signalling the departure of the state's congressional delegation to the summer political sessions.

The six house members opposed for renomination left confident but still mindful their state's electorate by precedent is not adverse to changing its spokesmen in Capitol Hill.

This congress, which wrote statutes outreaching in many respects the work of all its predecessors, was left for history to judge. But the legislative record of the congress was left solely to school texts while incumbent members seek public favor and must point to their records in these memorable sessions.

Solons to Remain. Georgia's two senators—Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell—do not go before the electorate this year, and four of its house members—Carl Vinson, of the sixth district; Robert Ramspeck, of the fifth; Paul Brown, of the tenth; and E. M. Owen, of the fourth—will be re-elected.

But the six other representatives—Homer Parker, of the first; E. E. Cox, of the second; Bryant C. Tellew, of the third; Malcolm C. Carter, seventh; Braxwell Dean, eighth; and J. S. Wood, ninth—will be re-elected before their departure heard rumblings from the political firing line, as opponents of the congressmen began to speak and set the stage for quick whittling of issues.

If early primaries in other states furnish any criterion, it then was the immediate conclusion the incoming legislature will center upon the incumbents' measure of support for President Roosevelt's very phase of his recovery legislation.

Records Easy to Follow. What with an unprecedented leadership from the White House and the president's stamp of approval or expressed opposition attached to every major piece of legislation, it has been a fairly simple matter for the wayward constituents to follow the record of the congressmen in relation to the wishes of the president.

The Georgians arrived for the opening of the session in January singing the praises of the president. They left in June singing the praises of the president's stamp of approval or expressed opposition attached to every major piece of legislation, it has been a fairly simple matter for the wayward constituents to follow the record of the congressmen in relation to the wishes of the president.

Except for the stamped on March 27 which overrode the president's veto of the independent offices measure raising veterans' benefits and government workers' pay, the action of the Georgia state representatives has been in keeping with their singing. On that occasion, however, only Representatives Cox and Owen voted to sustain the president.

When the Bankhead compulsory cotton baleage control measure came to a vote, the Georgians supported it as a measure to protect the cotton farmer, despite an energetic effort

Economic Life of Country Widely Altered by Congress

Radical Change in Basis of Currency System,
Regulation of Stocks
Among Notable Accomplishments.

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—A session of congress notable for legislation vital to the economic life of the nation's economic life; for disputes that stirred up and amused the country and for an awakening of conservative opposition to the more liberal policies of the Roosevelt administration ended tonight.

The fundamental basis of the currency system was radically altered, the stock market was placed under strict governmental regulation, the path through bankruptcy to solvency was made easier for both corporations and municipalities and the life of the reconstruction corporation was prolonged and its borrowing and lending power increased.

For controversies there were the cancellation of air mail contracts with the ensuing effort of the army to fly the mails, the famous Wirt investigation and the wrangle over the confirmation of Rexford Guy Tugwell, brain trust symbol, as undersecretary of agriculture.

In addition, there was the inevitable disagreement between the White House and congress on veterans' payments, ending with Mr. Roosevelt's first major defeat in the passage of a vetoed bill increasing such payments. Taxes and tariffs, too, produced usual disputes.

Dormant since the outset of the administration, due to the critical economic situation and the widespread popularity of the president, big business vigorously pursued opposition to the stock market bill, the Wagner labor disputes bill and the Copeland pure food measure.

Securities Measure Enacted. Nevertheless, the securities markets measure was enacted, but the Copeland bill was forgotten, while the Wagner measure furnished a battle for the closing days of the session which saw it whittled down to a shadow of its original robust self.

One of the first jobs that the president assigned to congress was that of monetary reform. After months of agitation for inflation and the discouraging results of the original gold buying program, the chief executive asked congress for authority to proceed in other directions.

As a result, the treasury took title to all the nation's monetary gold, including that held by the federal reserve banks; the legal gold equivalent of one dollar was reduced by 40 per cent. Gold was withdrawn entirely from circulation except for payment

SALIENT FACTS ON 73D CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Some salient facts about the seventy-third congress: Passed more than 400 public acts, consumed two a day. Passed hundreds of private bills. In session 265 days.

Spent money faster than capital exports could record. Estimated $11,000,000,000 for both sessions—about $5,000,000,000 at special session and remainder second session.

Shortest congress in 30 years—fifty-eight in 1903—ran three days more.

Went to shortest in 100 years, despite emergency character of much legislation.

General subservient to president, although restless in second session and bolted twice—first in beating veto on veterans' pensions and, second, in voting down St. Lawrence waterways treaty.

Of foreign trade balances. The nation was placed upon what the treasury's budget called "an international gold bullion basis."

From the profit accruing to the treasury when the gold content of the dollar was reduced, there was created a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, recently put to the task of keeping foreign exchange quotations at the level desired by the administration.

Enactment of monetary legislation that harked back to the silver campaigns of William Jennings Bryan. At the urging of the silver inflationists and senators from the states producing the metal, the president agreed to passage of a measure, stating it to be a national policy that one-quarter of the nation's metallic monetary reserves be maintained in silver.

Authorized to Buy Silver. To effectuate this policy, the president was given authority to make the necessary huge purchases of silver, but they were not made mandatory. Advocates of outright monetization of silver thought the bill inadequate, but silver state senators accepted the measure.

The stock exchange bill created a special commission of five to regulate the stock market, outlawed manipulation of securities and gave the federal reserve board authority to fix minimum margin requirements. A rider was attached, with the act, of monetary reform.

To help provide businessmen with credit needed for expansion, both houses passed a measure, authorizing the federal reserve to make loans to industry, directly or through member banks, with the latter assuming 20 per cent of the risk.

To make the future of bankruptcy easier for harassed corporations and municipalities, measures were perfected whereby reorganization plans approved by the courts and a stated proportion of creditors would be binding upon the minority of creditors. In the case of corporations this was a majority of individual creditors representing 66 2/3 per cent of the dollar volume of claims against the corporation in question. For municipalities the necessary proportion was 75 per cent.

The temporary deposit insurance plan was continued for one year with the maximum individual deposit guarantee increased from $2,500 to $5,000. The House of Representatives passed the Federal Reserve Credit Act, and administration were guaranteed as to both principal and interest.

Commission Set Up. A commission on the communications system of the country, investigate certain phases of it and report back to congress. Another measure prohibited federal courts from issuing injunctions against state decisions of state utilities commissions.

Agriculture, too, received a generous share of congressional attention, producing numerous disputes over the aims of the administration in this respect and charges that Dr. Tugwell and other presidential advisers were trying to "regiment" the farmers.

One of the most important farm bills was the Bankhead cotton bill, aimed at curbing speculation in cotton production this year to 10,000,000 bales through a tax placed on all bales over that figure.

Quotas were established for the various continental sugar producing areas and for the Philippines and Cuba in an effort to stabilize the sugar market. Benefit payments were provided for producers of cotton, cattle, barley, peanuts, rice, flax and grain sorghums were made basic commodities under the farm act and their producers made eligible for the benefits accruing from processing taxes.

A total of $40,000,000 was appropriated for crop loans, and to the deficiency bill of the close of the session was attached a $325,000,000 appropriation for relief in the territories recently devastated by drought.

Mail Episode. The air mail episode produced probably the hottest congressional controversy of the session. On the findings of the Black committee which investigated the air mail contracts awarded by the Hoover administration, all were cancelled, and the army assigned the task of carrying the mail.

A series of disasters followed, blamed partially upon the coincidence of a period of unusually heavy flying weather. Regular regulations in the senate and house charged that the contracts had been cancelled without reason, and that the army's assignment was inhumane.

Two pieces of air mail legislation resulted, enacted only after vehement disputes. They established a commission to investigate the aviation needs of the country with a view to forming an integrated policy covering all flying, and authorized the postoffice department to let air mail contracts of one year's duration.

The Wirt inquiry furnished the best showing of the session. A letter from Dr. William A. Wirt, a Gary (Ind.) educator, was read to a house committee, attributing to "brain trusters" statements that Mr. Roosevelt was "a Keresky" and that they were dictating all his decisions.

The house set up an investigating committee. Dr. Wirt was called, revealed that the sources of the information were a group of minor government employees and a newspaperman and several others who attended a dinner party at which Wirt was present.

All were summoned and denied making any such assertions. In fact, they testified Dr. Wirt monopolized the conversations with talk on inflation, to such an extent that they had hardly an opportunity to say anything.

Tugwell Confirmed. Republicans on the committee urged that Dr. Tugwell and other presidential advisers be called, but the democratic majority ruled otherwise. However, Dr. Tugwell was summoned before the senate agriculture committee for an explanation of his qualifications for the post of undersecretary of agriculture, to which President Roosevelt had promoted him.

The hearing turned from an examination of Tugwell's views to a series of heated exchanges between members

DEFICIENCY BILL SENT TO F. D. R.

$2,000,000,000 Appropriated for Relief and Public Works.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The second biggest appropriation bill in peace-time history, carrying more than $2,000,000,000 for relief and public works, was sent to the White House today by congress.

Congressional action was completed early in the day when the senate adopted the conference report which had been approved Saturday night by the house.

The only bigger appropriation bill passed by congress during peace times was the deficiency measure put through in the closing days of the last session, carrying a little more than $3,000,000,000.

While the bill approved today authorized new appropriations of some what less than $2,000,000,000, it carried authority for President Roosevelt to use $500,000,000 of Reconstruction Corporation funds for relief and public works.

This item, incidentally, was the biggest controversy in the bill. The house gave the president a free hand to use all unobligated funds at his discretion, but the senate limited him to $500,000,000, and the congress agreed to the limitation.

Including this fund, congressional leaders estimate President Roosevelt will have $1,200,000,000 available for public works and about a similar sum for relief, including both general unemployment and drought relief.

A drought relief fund of $250,000,000, the amount recommended by President Roosevelt, was provided in the bill.

With other relief expenditures now running about $110,000,000 a month, leaders estimated the bill would carry the government along for at least eight months, by which time congress would be in session again and able to appropriate more if needed.

Other large items in the bill included: Road construction, $119,500,000. For law enforcement under the recently enacted crime bills, slightly more than $2,000,000.

For enforcement of the oil code, $1,500,000.

For carrying out the silver purchase law, $4,500,000.

Ancient Turk Made Ill By Attack on Age Claim
ISTANBUL, June 18.—(AP)—Zaro Agha—believed to be the oldest man in the world—went back into the children's hospital today, delirious and with a high fever.

His aged daughter, Gulu Hanoum, watched by his bedside. She said her father was greatly agitated by various allegations that his claim of being 144 years old was false.

Agha recently was discharged from the same hospital after a short period there for medical attention.

PRE-EMBARGO ARMS MAY LEAVE NORFOLK

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The aerial bombs purchased by Bolivia prior to May 28 for use against Paraguay, and which now are in Norfolk awaiting shipment, will be allowed to move forward because they have been found to be outside the terms of the presidential ban on sale of arms to Bolivia and Paraguay.

Several tons of explosives were reported to be shipped to the Bolivian coast, which originated in New Jersey, had been routed via Norfolk to be carried by freighter, inasmuch as explosives were forbidden on passenger ships.

Other shipments of munitions to Bolivia, now on docks in New York, are being investigated by the department of justice.

of the committee including charges of making political speeches. The senate subsequently confirmed the nomination by a sizeable majority.

As always in a campaign, veterans payments provided a major controversy and defeat for the president. Amendments were added to the independent offices appropriations bill to increase veterans benefits. Mr. Roosevelt opposed and vetoed the measure.

Both houses quickly enacted the bill over his veto, the house by a vote of 310 to 72 and the senate by 63 to 27. The bonus came up and the president, opposing payment, was defeated in the house, 295 to 125, and on three separate occasions the senate upheld him on this issue by comfortable majorities.

Taxes and tariffs, always explosive subjects, added to the session's disputes. A tax bill estimated to increase the nation's revenues by $417,000,000 and tighten up the laws so that evasion of taxation would be reduced to a minimum was enacted.

Liberals in the senate scored impressive victories in increased payments by the big taxpayers, but most of their amendments were thrown out in conference.

Lengthy Debate on Tariff Bill
The senate debated the tariff bill for nearly three weeks. The measure authorized the president to make reciprocal tariff reduction agreements with other nations as a means of rehabilitating the nation's export trade. Republicans vainly denounced the measure as disastrous and unconstitutional.

In the field of foreign affairs, the president also suffered a defeat. The senate refused to consent to ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway and power treaty with Canada, which the chief executive had urged.

The vote was 46 for ratification to 42 against. A two-thirds majority was necessary.

In addition, congress produced a measure which has had an important bearing upon the continuing international disagreement upon payment of war debts. It was the Johnson bill, declaring any nation in arrears in default and ineligible to receive American credit.

At President Roosevelt's request, a joint resolution was adopted under which he prohibited the sale of arms and munitions intended for use in the war between Paraguay and Bolivia, in an effort to terminate that bloody conflict.

Also at the chief executive's insistence, congress devoted its closing hours to the administration housing bill, intended to facilitate the obtaining of credit for purposes of home building and renovation. It was part of a program of social reforms, outlined in a presidential message, for enactment at the next session.

Appropriations for the next fiscal year totaled more than $6,800,000,000, as estimated by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, in addition to a $950,000,000 item for continuation of the civil works administration through the late months of last winter. The second deficiency bill also authorized the president to devote to relief purposes unexpended balances of the reconstruction administration and the public works administration, running into the billions.

Slain? TUFVERSON CASE STILL IS MYSTERY

intered with police as Susanne Ferran, was taken into custody after the property was found. Police said she obviously knew the trunk, dresses, jewelry and books belonged to Miss Tufverson.

TORSO, LEGS FOUND IN ENGLISH STATION
BRIGHTON, England, June 18.—(AP)—A "trunk murder" was disclosed today with the discovery of a woman's torso in Brighton railway station, and Scotland Yard detectives gave consideration to the possibility that the victim was the missing American lawyer, Agnes Tufverson.

This theory was weakened by an important variation from the published police description of Miss Tufverson, but was not wholly abandoned.

The missing woman was described as having an abdominal operation scar, while Ferran's was not marked in this manner.

The torso—that of a woman about 40 years of age—was found in a cheap trunk, the origin of which and the manner in which it reached the station luggage room were not determined.

Scotland Yard officers tonight found the legs in a suit case which had been left at the station.

The torso was found last night, but announcement was withheld until today, apparently in the hope of establishing some identification between the killer and his victim had been discovered.

The woman, it was estimated, had been dead about three weeks. Her height was estimated at around five feet two or three inches and the body appeared to be that of a "well-nourished" person.

The officer's description of the missing American woman gives her age as 43 and her height as about 5 feet 6 inches. She weighed about 135 pounds.

The torso was unclothed and was wrapped in brown paper tied with a window cord. The paper bore the word "Ford," which police theorized might be part of the name of a town.

VIENNA POLICE BELIEVE
MISS TUFVERSON DEAD

VIENNA, June 18.—(AP)—Vienna police today turned Captain Ivan Poderjaj to the police, missing American woman, tony tony and announced at the conclusion of a day of intensive investigation that they believed the woman is dead.

The outstanding developments of the day's inquiries into the affairs of the missing woman were:

1. Discovery of a trunk and other property of Miss Tufverson in his apartment.

2. Abandonment by Poderjaj of his story that his marriage to Miss Tufverson was a sham.

3. Detention of Susanne Ferran, the woman with whom he lived here, and a statement by her that Poderjaj had said Miss Tufverson gave him the trunk and its contents as a parting gift before she left on a world cruise.

Police said that although they believe the missing American woman is dead they cannot hold Poderjaj in definitely unless assured that he is not in the country on a definite criminal charge.

The finding of the trunk and other articles in the apartment from which Poderjaj was taken to jail last week threw the first definite light on the case since inquiries were started as to the fate or whereabouts of the 43-year-old woman lawyer.

Miss Ferran admitted to police that she knew the property had been that of Miss Tufverson.

She protested her loyalty to Poderjaj and said she had never married Miss Tufverson at all, but was only a "good friend," good enough for her to give him the trunk and its contents.

Miss Ferran was wearing when Poderjaj was arrested.

Poderjaj, faced with these developments, which in the view of police called for further inquiry into his claim that he has no idea where Miss Tufverson has been since he parted in her last December, changed his story about the marriage.

He said his marriage to Miss Ferran, in London, was not "registered" and therefore was "illegal." Previously he had insisted he married Miss Tufverson, although already wed to Miss Ferran, to save her from spinsterhood at her own request.

Today's scene of the apartment disclosed the Tufverson property despite the fact that the place had been searched before and nothing had been found.

A brief case containing two books, one on the art of love and one on birth control, was among the objects found by the searchers. Both books had Miss Tufverson's name on the fly leaves.

The trunk was of the warlike type, colored green. The garments included a black fur coat, a black velvet jacket, half a dozen dresses of various colors and materials and leather gloves.

Two strands of pearls and a necklace of amber beads also were identified as the property of the missing woman.

FORMER WIFE REVEALS
DISAPPEARANCE OF $10,000
BELGRADE, Yugo-Slavia, June 18.—(AP)—A Belgrade woman, Mrs. Zorka, today produced documents to show that she was married to Captain Ivan Poderjaj October 13, 1926, and was granted a divorce November 16, 1933, about a month before his marriage to the missing Agnes Tufverson.

Mrs. Zorka, a tall, slender blond, recalled the romantic captain, now in jail in Vienna, with undisguised affection. She was eager for news of him and blamed his trouble on the woman with whom he was living in Vienna, Susanne Ferran.

She said that $10,000 disappeared from her safe deposit box about the time Poderjaj left Yugo-Slavia and that later her furniture was seized and sold for debt.

GARAGE CODE BODY QUITS, SCORES NRA

Walter Candler Member of Group Resigning in Letter to F. D. R.

Walter T. Candler, southeastern representative of the national code authority for the motor vehicle storage and parking trade, announced Monday that the entire code authority has sent its resignations to President Roosevelt together with a protest against the NRA order of May 26 eliminating all price-fixing elements from the code.

In making the announcement, Mr. Candler pointed out that nearly all the large garages and parking lots of his area, comprising the entire southeast, had signed the code and given employment to several thousand workers and increased the wages of the thousands who already were employed when the code went into effect.

He said that about 40 per cent of the garage and parking lot owners of Georgia were under the code, having provided employment to about 300 more persons than they had employed before the code went into effect.

The Atlanta board public the code authority's letter to President Roosevelt, which pointed out that those operating under it had increased wages 25 per cent and reduced working hours to 40 per week, and that the NRA would fix the prices to be charged by the industry, eliminating cut-throat competition and enable it to progress more rapidly than before.

The letter said in part: "Every duty prescribed to the code authority in this matter has been meticulously performed by them, but after six months of frustration, confusion, contradiction or total inaction, on the part of the recovery administration, the administrator's order of May 26 attempts to wipe out with one stroke of the pen all that is of possible value in the code to the trade, retaining only its burden of labor provisions, thus attempting to repeat the failure of the code which made the other half possible. Such action, if legal, must abrogate the entire code and will, in fact, if not in theory, abolish the other half as to hours and labor."

The letter pointed out that the action of the administrator leaves the code authority "hopelessly bankrupt" with no means of paying the items of expense involved in its operation, adding that the May 26 order "amounts to notice that the government will not perform its part of the bargain."

The resignations are to take effect as soon as the president has appointed successors.

In addition to Mr. Candler, the code authority is composed of Glenn S. Hitham, of Boston, chairman; Horace B. Pendergast, of New York; Paul J. Rossman, Milwaukee; Harry A. Rubin, Kansas City; Roy C. Schall, Seattle, and Willis W. Smith, Camden, N. J.

GEORGIA WILL GET $13,000,000 FUND

have special arrangements, match the federal funds with an equal amount. A total of $250,000,000 is authorized for main roads in states for each of the latter two fiscal years in addition to miscellaneous smaller authorizations for forests, parks, Indian reservations and the like, which do not require matching as they are for roads on government land.

No appropriation is made in the bill, however, and no new funds were provided by the seventy-third congress for the purpose except $100,000,000 in the deficiency bill. However there is a carry-over of some $100,000,000 from the 1933 funds.

Senators Issue Statement.
Senators of Arizona, and Representative Cartwright, of Oklahoma, who sponsored the road fund measure, were present when President Roosevelt affixed his signature and issued the following statement:

"As long as the roads of the nation are used by more than 24,000,000 automobiles and trucks, construction and improvement of roads will be of major importance."

"The Hayden-Cartwright act seems to stabilize highway building with federal and state funds by insuring a work program for the next three years."

Peggy, in France, Seeks To Halt Sale of Villa
VILLERANCHIE, France, June 18.—(AP)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce arrived today to prevent sale of her villa, the Little Blue Dog, for unpaid bills.

The much-married actress sniffed the air of the Riviera and remarked: "My villa cost 2,000,000 francs (about $132,000), and the sheriffs wanted to sell it for a mere 10,000 francs to meet a bill of only 4,000 francs."

"It looks to me like there's been some screwy business. I'm taking the matter up with a lawyer."

I. C. C. RATE PROBE ASKED BY WILHOIT

Commission Head Seeks Consideration of Georgia Road's Petition.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission was asked today by Jud P. Wilhoit, Georgia public service commission chairman, to include in its general passenger rate investigation, consideration of the petition of railroads that the Georgia passenger fares be brought into line with interstate rates.

The railroads have asked the I. C. C. to adjust the rates set by the Georgia commission, with fares prevailing throughout the country. The Georgia commission recently reduced passenger rates between points within the state from 3.6 cents to 2 cents.

Wilhoit protested to the I. C. C. against the recent practice of railroads in establishing experimental rates of 1.5 cents a mile for day coaches and 3 cents for Pullman cars, while not computing the 3 cents into the regular added charge for Pullmans.

This, the Georgian said, set up first and second class railway passage, similar to the European system, and he asked that the American precedent of one fare, except the regular extra Pullman charge, be maintained.

I. C. C. commissioners assured him, said Wilhoit, that both matters would be given consideration on July 2.

The Georgia commissioner also conferred with members of the Georgia congressional delegation on their resolution now pending in the senate and house to provide an investigation of rail freight rates to determine if the south were discriminated against.

There was no hope, Wilhoit said, of getting the resolution passed in the congress now about to adjourn, but he expressed confidence that with added figures and other data to substantiate the needs of such an investigation, the resolution would be adopted by the next congress.

THREE FOUND TIED, MURDERED IN AUTO

Men Shot to Death Are Identified by Police as Petty Racketeers.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 18.—(AP)—Three men, found bound with rope and their mouths sealed with adhesive tape, the bodies of three men, listed in police records here as thieves and petty racketeers, were found shot to death today in an automobile at Dunham's Corners, East Brunswick township.

They were identified as Henry Teel, 24; Peter Georgianna, 25, and Isadore Gutman, 26, all of New Brunswick.

State police expressed the belief the three men, who were at liberty in jail following their arrest for a recent roadblock holdup, had been trapped by members of another gang, disarmed and placed in Gutman's new sedan and taken to Dunham's Corners for "execution."

Michael Ferencik, a laborer, found the bodies and called the police. Georgianna and Teel were seated in the rear seat from which the cushions had been discarded. Gutman lay across their feet.

Four shells from revolvers of three different calibers were found on the floor. Teel had been shot twice under the chin. Another bullet had pierced his left hand and entered his ear, indicating he had thrown up his hands to protect himself. Two bullets had hit Georgianna under the chin, and Gutman was shot through the back eight times. He had managed to free his feet and had apparently tried to plunge through the door on the right-hand side of the car just before his executioners opened fire.

ALL PARKING BANS IN BUSINESS AREAS VOIDED BY COUNCIL

as the "inner-parking area" is effective on the following streets: Baker street north to intersection of Ivy street; Peachtree street north to intersection of Ivy street; Peachtree street south to intersection of Baker street; Baker street east to Courtland street; Courtland street south to the beginning of Washington street; Washington street south to intersection of Trinity street; Trinity street west to intersection of Spring street; Spring street north to Marietta street; Marietta street west to intersection of Walton street; Walton street east to intersection of Bartow street; Bartow street north to intersection of Cain street; Cain street east to intersection of Spring street; Spring street north to intersection of Baker street.

The chief of police is ordered to paint out the yellow curb, indicating non-parking in all areas not protected under the new ordinance, and automobiles will be allowed to use the streets at all times within the restrictions, if Mayor Key sanctions council's action.

Too Many Restrictions.
In offering the measure, Councilman Curtis said the city had so many restrictions that drivers do not know when they violate the laws. He added privately that the police department itself cannot keep up with the many changes made, and that the public generally is confused. He said the ordinance would give the mayor will give the proposed raise in salaries, recommended by Alderman G. Everett Millican and Councilman Ed Almond, serious study before taking action, but it was just as clearly shown that he will insist that sufficient funds be in sight to meet the requirements of the raises without the crippling municipal services to the public.

Predictions were that the mayor will not sanction it.

Millican asserted that only 21 employees of the city hall are affected by the measure. Most of the 600 are employees of the sanitary, construction, parks and cemetery departments and work outside the city hall. All the changes were for reinstatement of basic salaries slashed in moves to effect city economies.

Among other outstanding actions of council were the following:

1. Set up $1,500 to institute condemnation proceedings to obtain a strip 40 feet wide and 291 feet long for extension of Whitehall street from Gordon to Lee street. The condemnation is against the Ruralist Press, a city-owned lot in the sixth ward over to the school department in accordance with provisions of the deed of the donor of the tract.
2. Referred to the ordinance committee a proposal by Council J. Frank Beck to employ a secretary to certify sick and death certificates at Grady hospital. At the present time hospital attaches are allowed to collect a small fee for the service, necessary for collection of insurance.
3. Reduced the 1934-35 license fee on hotels from $1.20 a room to $1.
4. Renewed the lease of the Eastern Air Lines for a period of 15 years effective in August and the Atlanta Aircraft Corporation for the same period.
5. Referred to the ordinance committee a proposal by Alderman Robert H. Overton and John Scott to abolish the taxi ordinance.
6. Established New Year, Memorial Day, July 4, Labor Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas as legal holidays for the municipality.
7. Referred by a vote of 19 against 16 to allow Solomon Pihla to operate a pool room at 79-85 Pryor street, N. E.

summoned as a "precautionary measure."

At Omaha, Major General Frank R. McCoy, seventh corps area commander, said he had authorized Colonel Harris to call out the troops if he considered such action necessary.

When the court session ended one truck of infantrymen moved to the hotel where Judge Miller has his quarters.

In the afternoon both trucks returned to Fort Lincoln, where two observation planes had just arrived from Fort Snelling, Minn. They came,

according to the commandant, as a part of their "training."

Practice March.
Two hundred soldiers were on a "practice march," north of the city. By afternoon the city was quiet but tense. Never had there been any outward demonstration of excitement, but citizens closely watched developments. An observer likened the city to a "powder keg."

The gubernatorial situation threw state politics into turmoil.

Langer firmly announced he intended to "fight to the last" to retain his office. Before the executive offices were posted the sheriff of this county and other law enforcement officers to prevent any persons from entering the quarters.

The move was taken as a precaution against a coup d'etat the Langer administration feared would be attempted by Olson forces.

Takes Oath.
Olson arrived here in the early hours of the morning. He took his oath of office in a notary public office before a notary public.

Langer, noted for his frequent use of national guardsmen to enforce his several notations and embargo proclamations, said he would use "force" if necessary to retain his office. He declared specifically he did not intend to use national guardsmen.

In a verdict returned Sunday after more than 60 hours of deliberation by a federal court jury, Governor Langer and four associates, R. A. Kinzer, former secretary of the federal emergency relief committee for North Dakota; Oscar Chaput, business manager of the "Leader," Langer administration weekly newspaper; Harold McDonald, solicitor for the publication; and Frank A. Vogel, state highway commissioner, were convicted of conspiracy to obstruct operation of congressional relief legislation by soliciting funds for the "Leader" from workers paid with federal relief funds.

Today's postponement of sentence was granted at the request of defense attorneys.

The six students were among the members of the graduating class of Wellesley College, who celebrated the 50th commencement Monday with Dr. George E. Vincent, president emeritus of the University of Minnesota, delivering the commencement address.

Miss Taft is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, a Durant scholar, and won departmental honors in English literature, her major subject. She also has been awarded a trust scholarship with which she plans to continue her work in English literature at Yale University next year. She was toastmistress at the senior class supper Monday night, the last of the graduation festivities. She is a member of Shakespeare, one of the honorary Wellesley societies, and her senior year she was vice president of her class.

Miss Gardner has been prominent in college affairs since her freshman year, when she was chairman of her house. GERMANY'S ENVOY TO RUSSIA RESIGNS

Nadoly's Action Adds Significance to Von Papen's Criticism of Hitler.

BERLIN, June 18.—(AP)—Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen's vigorous blast at Nazi doctrines added significance today when it became known that Count Rudolf Nadoly had resigned as German ambassador to Russia.

This is the first defection from government ranks since the resignation of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg as minister of economics and agriculture last June.

Nadoly's resignation, withheld from the public until today, dates back to the middle of May when he tried in vain to persuade Chancellor Adolf Hitler to accept Russia's proposal for a non-aggression pact—a proposal also favored by the foreign office.

As Nadoly is a close friend of the family of President von Hindenburg, some political circles saw his resignation as a deliberate campaign by Germany's grand old man to bring Nazi extremists to their senses.

Nazi Politics Opposed.
President von Hindenburg is now at the ancestral estate at Neudeck where it is reported his east Prussian associates are hard at work in opposition to Nazi policies, especially agrarian.

One version of Von Papen's speech is that he spoke of his own initiative with the same daring which brought his removal from the Prussian socialist cabinet in July, 1932.

The most common comment was that the vice chancellor's speech, delivered yesterday to students at Marburg University, was that it forecast the parting of ways of the veteran statesman and Hitlerism.

Chancellor Hitler's address at Gera on Monday night, in which he proclaimed the end of dictating to Germany and asserting that "Germany's first is ready to smash" critics was prominently displayed in the press.

Remarks Withheld.
Von Papen's remarks taking issue with the campaign against "grousers and croakers" and advocating freedom of criticism by the press, however, were withheld from newspapers.

While many thought that the speech meant Von Papen is on his way out of the government, others speculated that he may have spoken with the connivance of the chancellor.

The Reich government, Von Papen said, "is well informed about all of the government, others speculated that he may have spoken with the connivance of the chancellor.

The Reich government, Von Papen said, "is well informed about all of the government, others speculated that he may have spoken with the connivance of the chancellor.

and a number of other senators will do our best to keep the congress from adjourning until such time as we do get an opportunity for a vote."

The insurgents were not to be thwarted. Dill quickly moved that the bill be made the senate's unfinished business and Hastings, just as quickly began his filibuster, carrying out a previous warning that he was prepared to speak indefinitely.

Later, he relented and permitted a vote on the Dill motion which started galleries by producing a 76 to 2 vote in favor of consideration and found the independents and the leadership finally voting together.

Party Harmony.
After a brief discussion of the measure by Dill and others of his associates, Hastings again took the floor to resume his filibuster, reading reports, pamphlets, and transcripts of committee hearings.

But, the party leadership had patched up its row with the insurgents and announced it was waiting only for an opportunity to break the filibuster.

Realizing the impossibility of his lone task, he, too, capitulated, and with this key log out of the way, the jam broke and adjournment tonight became, for the first time, a definite certainty.

Robinson declined to attach any special significance to the events of the day, and expressed great gratification at the accomplishments of the 73rd congress, asserting it had "done more work" than any congress in his recollection.

Officially, the congress which concluded its work tonight began its labors five days after the inauguration of President Roosevelt, called into special session to deal with the banking crisis.

President Pleased.
Since then, it has enacted laws vitally affecting the economic life of the nation and made a beginning on extensive social reforms, for which President Roosevelt has asked action at the next session.

His enactments greatly altered the banking and currency systems, brought for the NRA and the AAA placed the government in control of the stock exchanges and the country's communications systems. In fact it gave statutory vitality to the New Deal.

President Roosevelt tonight applauded the accomplishments of the session in a letter in which he expressed a "spirit" of "deep satisfaction" at the co-operation between legislative and executive branches of the government to which he attributed the success of the session.

MOBILE, Ala., June 18.—(UP)—Members of the International Longshoremen's Union here went on strike late today following refusal of their demands on stevedore operators for wage raises to the New Orleans scales of 75 cents per hour and $1.10 an hour for overtime.

Labor officials estimated that 1,000 employees were affected by the walk-out.

Approximately 150 men working on the only two ships taking cargo in port today failed to return for duty after lunch.

Twenty-two special policemen were enlisted to patrol the waterfront to prevent violence as ship operators planned to employ strikebreakers.

ENTIRE U. S. FLEET LEAVES NEW YORK AFTER LONG REST

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—The United States fleet weighed anchor today and ended an 18-day stay in New York harbor.

Beginning early in the morning and continuing through the afternoon, grim fighting vessels left their anchorages and berths and churned the water toward the open sea.

Thousands of New Yorkers lined the Hudson and the shores of the lower bay waving final farewells to the ships which were visited by an estimated 1,400,000 persons during the fleet's stay in port.

Vessels anchored in the Brooklyn navy yard were the first to leave. They were followed by the aircraft carrier, the Saratoga and Lexington, and then the other ships berthed in the Hudson.

In contrast to their gala entrance, the fighting ships sped out of the harbor in silent, businesslike processions, ships for tactical maneuvers at sea.

The holiday was over; officers and men were back to the strict regimen of strenuous, active duty.

New Players Arrive Late For Burlesque

Burlesque operated under difficulties at the Atlanta theater Monday. With a carload of new people coming from Chicago, repeated tire trouble delayed their arrival until after the start of the night performance. No matinee was given at all.

And when the new performers did arrive they were so worn out with the long hard trip only one could appear. She is a new strip woman, name of Texas Barlow. She did her strip in the second half of the show and won applause that can only be described as unstinted.

The result of the newcomers, another woman song and dance artist, a new comedian—App (Skins) Candler—and new girls for the line. They were understood, he working for the balance of the week. So, any comment upon Monday night's performance will hardly be fair for the shows during the balance of the week.

The result of the absence was that Bonnie Mack and several others had to work beyond their code quota. And the lack of the Monday matinee made some of the acts at night somewhat incoherent.

Larry Clark was excellent in his songs. He sang "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," and another song in the first half, donned the burnt cork for an imitation of Cab Calloway in the second half and finished up with "Wagon Wheels" by request.

The Ross boy did some good dancing and that fellow whose name slips memory, but who plays on queer instruments, made some fast rhythm on a washboard with auto horns, cymbals and bells attached.

The show was too talkative, speaking generally, and too ambitious. The highlight part took a long time to come to a climax and really, burlesque voices are not suitable for operatic recitations.

However, while the show couldn't, under the circumstances, be as good as it can be, the audience seemed to enjoy themselves and the management promised, as soon as these new people get into the swing, that there'll be a marvelous improvement.

And the candy salesmen did the best business they've done yet on a Monday night.

1 IN JAIL, 1 SOUGHT IN DENTIST'S DEATH

Wealthy Real Estate Holder Found Murdered on Illinois Farm.

ELDORADO, Ill., June 18.—(AP)—A Texas woman was in custody and her traveling companion, Harold St. Clair, alias Lee Armstrong, was hunted over a wide area tonight as federal and state authorities sought to solve the mysterious slaying of Dr. Homer L. Meyers, 55, well-to-do dentist.

Authorities, who after an all night search found the body of the dentist today in a clump of weeds on a farm he owned near Equality, said they were convinced Dr. Meyers was slain shortly after he had been lured away Saturday by a stranger who posed as a prospective buyer of the land.

Robbery, authorities asserted, appeared the motive for the crime but they admitted it was also possible that Meyers was killed as he struggled to frustrate a kidnapping attempt.

The dentist's wife said he was in the habit of carrying sizeable sums of money with him.

The woman held by county authorities gave her name as Evelyn Anderson, of Woodboro, Texas, apprehended Sunday night as she was about to take a bus to Chicago, she told officers she had been traveling with "Armstrong," that she had seen him last Saturday night and that he had told her "I make $8,000 on that farm deal," apparently referred to the trip he had taken with the dentist.

To add to the mystery, Dr. Meyers' office here had been ransacked. Police said they were unable to determine what, if anything, had been taken.

The search for Meyers started yesterday when his wife reported he had not returned after leaving for the farm. Suspicion of kidnapping grew as the hours passed and federal officers entered the hunt. Last night Meyers' car was found near the farm, its lights still going.

Duties intensified their hunt on the Meyers' place. This forenoon, beating through the bush, they found his body. Two bullets had been fired into it.

Meyers was regarded as moderately wealthy and owned considerable real estate.

PRACTICAL JOKER SOUGHT BY POLICE IN 'DEATH' PRANK

Reports of the death of First Lieutenant H. H. Clark, U. S. A., retired, Monday night, were, as Mark Twain so astutely observed, grossly exaggerated.

The lieutenant received visits from four Atlanta white undertakers, and one negro undertaker came to his residence at 2817 Habersham road looking for the body of Mr. Clark's chauffeur. Lieutenant Clark met them all at the door, and his obvious activity was considerably increased by his more than obvious anger at the "practical joke."

He reported the matter to Captain A. J. Holcombe, of the police department, and the hoax which caused Lieutenant Clark no end of embarrassment and cost the morticians a large sum of money, will be thoroughly investigated by the police. Harry G. Poole, H. M. Patterson & Son, Attorneys at Law, the J. Austin Dillon Company, and David T. Howard, the latter the negro undertaker, sent hearses to the Habersham road address.

Ray Teal Brings Fine Offering to Capitol
Ray Teal brings the kind of a stage entertainment which boasts that no other stage hands lack polish. There is a finished perfection to his entire performance that brings back memories of the old days when a vaudeville performer was something more than an amateur, when finished artistry was essential to success in the two-day.

Teal's "Floridians" as he calls his orchestra, may not be so much better than lots of other stage bands we have heard at the Capitol, but that betterment, even though it be only one per cent, represents the difference between an effort at an effect and the achievement of it.

The same is true of his singer, Harvey Bell. Perhaps Harvey's voice is no greater than others, but he knows just what value to give every tone and every syllable, he understands his nuances if you get what I mean.

Teal's stage show boasts merely the orchestra, two dancing girls and Harvey Bell. But he puts on a far better performance with these than most of the companies that have boasted of performers in their ranks.

You may gather from all this that the stage show at the Capitol this week is good entertainment. It is.

The screen offering falls into the category of the loving couple who struggle for years to achieve matrimony and the presumed, eternal happiness therein involved. They are kept apart by a war, censured mail and a designing woman rival, but the final fadout is a clinch and the promise of babies to come. Let's hope they don't have colic. Hugh Williams is a delightfully Oxford as the hero and Helen Twelvetrees is as pensive as a dozen weeping willows as the heroine.

Bright spot on the screen program is a Laurel and Hardy comedy, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has thanked!

Yiddish Play Offered At Erlanger at 9:30

For one performance only, at 9:30 tonight, the Erlanger theater presents a screen attraction of rare type, to Atlanta. It is the Yiddish film, "Uncle Moses," with the famous Jewish star, Maurice Schwartz, in the title role and with a cast that includes Rubin Goldberg, Jewish radio favorite; Judith Abarbanel and many others.

"Uncle Moses" is from the stage success by Sholom Asch, and is said to be one of the truly classic Yiddish plays. The author, Asch, knows his East Side New York people, knows them from the inside. To him his central character, "Uncle Moses" is a real person, combining in one individual the complex characteristics of the immigrant who up a great fortune and becomes the leader of his little community.

The picture will be shown as a benefit, for the single performance at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

GEORGE, WOOD PROTEST GARMENT CODE CHANGE

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Senator George and Representative Wood, both of Georgia, protested today against the transfer of any division of the cotton garments code to another code.

Wood appeared personally before a hearing on a proposal to move wash pants, overalls and dresses, respectively to the men's clothing and dress manufacturing codes.

George addressed the hearing a letter of protest, both objected on the grounds that to transfer the cheap cotton garments to the code supervising more expensive clothing would tend to raise the price on the cotton goods and thereby injure the cotton industry by reducing consumption.

RESTLESS WOMEN
BY JANE DIXON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Tiring of her widowed mother's extravagance and desperate efforts to maintain what she considers their proper place in New York society, Sandra Reynal goes into the chorus of "Princess Pep" on Broadway. Sandra makes her decision despite Corinne Reynal's vehement protests and the sturm and drang of her wealthy bachelor uncle, Raoul Reynal, whose favorite she had been. It is her mother's squandering of $25,000 Sandra had obtained from him last causes her to go on the stage. Her sister, Valerie, Gilbert Akin, but Corinne is counting, nevertheless, on the Akin wealth. Gil had made love to Sandra while they were summering at Sandarbor but she stepped aside when her match-making mother said Gil was in love with Valerie. At the club, the season's finale, Val went alone with the half-drunk Gil to his room, hoping to get him to propose, and it was Sandra's taking him to task for putting her sister in such a position which led to his elopement with Val. Their honeymoon has just ended when Sandra, a young newspaperman who wrote a sketch used in "Princess Pep," tries to shield Sandra from a piece of stage scenery which she is slightly hurt but he confesses his injury and sees her to get him to his apartment. He has taken in West 12th street. They are attracted to each other and are much together. Over her mother's "command" to come to see her, Sandra goes and Corinne says Akin wants a divorce. NOW GO ON TO THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

"Because I'm determined to stay where I am, to steam along under my own power even though I got no place in particular doing it." She could be curt, too.

"It is not necessary for you to get any place. Your place is already fixed for you. The stage is no place in particular to exploit the name Reynal."

Sandra's lips tightened. "Not to mention the Reynal talent, if any," she said wryly. "I'm staying on in the theater, at least for the present."

"Even though by so doing you sac-crifice your inheritance? The Reynal estate is entirely in my hands. I may dispose of it as I will."

Sandra's eyes were rapier, flashing. She said, with more coldness than ever she had given to him who was closest in heart of her kin, "Dancing slippers are better than dead men's shoes."

"More exciting. Not as durable," Uncle Raoul matched chill for chill. "I am your natural protector, now that your father is gone and your mother is—Corinne. I must take any step that will bring you to reason. You will not be considered a member of the Reynal family until you give up the theater as a means of material benefit."

Sandra rose. "I must be bowling alone," she said, "or I'll be late for first call."

Seeing her standing there, her slim young body so straight and resistant, her rounded young chin held so high, Raoul thought that if ever there was a Reynal worthy of the steel, this girl with the warmth in her hair and the gallantry of battle in the lift of her shoulders was that Reynal. Suddenly he felt the years upon him. Lonely, ineffectual.

"Sandy," he pleaded and his voice was old as his heart, "won't you come to the old house? Come and brighten it with your youth. My time grows short. Come and make the down trail happy for me."

Her body was a lump of ice between two stones, crushing. This was the Owl, crushing grinding. This was not Corinne. Pity. Did age wherever its seat, use pity to crush youth into its mould? Corinne's ambition. The Owl's pride. What of her, Sandra Reynal? She had ambition. She had pride.

"I will come to the old house, and you, Owl, every day," she said and made no effort to stem the tears that brimmed over her eyes. "I've got to go on, to my own little nest, to my own little life, no matter how small it seems to you. I must."

She did not understand. "Then there is nothing more to be said," Raoul Reynal's rising was a gesture of dismissal.

Sandra took recourse to lightness. The gates of the chill wall had already closed between them. So be it. She said, as lightly as though she was bidding farewell to a casual host, "Nothing excepting I'll be in to dine. I hope you liked Steve Hale."

"A very personable young man. He is carpenter."

Sandra smiled. It was the Owl's parting shot at the theater.

"Why, darling," she protested, "I've seen you noring over Shakespeare for hours."

"There are no more Shakespeares."

"The cow might jump over the moon."

Raoul's car took Sandra and Steve to the theater. Steve was enthusiastic about the Reynal house. Sandra responded to his enthusiasm in monosyllables. She ached. Her muscles, her heart, her brain ached from the impact of the crusher. She had lost the Owl. She had denied him the gift it was in her power to make, and she had stubbornly, selfishly refused the giving. She must never go to him again, she told herself.

The Owl did not make idle threats. She had cut herself off deliberately, inexorably, from his comradeship, from his house, from his fortune. She was no longer a Reynal except in name.

"Hey, Sandy," the Queen broadcast in the wings just before the lace chorus went on. "I see you roll up in a de luxe. Don't tell me the boy author's gone Vanderbilt."

"Not yet," Sandra laughed. "We were just taking the air and happened to run into a friend with an eagle back."

"Seaguing, is it?" Fredericka Fordyce, otherwise Queen of Diamonds, lapsed to Miss Murphy.

STRANGE FOLKS OF FAR PLACES.

XII—Maori Customs.

Priests of the Maori tribes were in the custom of blessing certain shrubs before new canoes were placed in the water.

To cook their food, the Maoris used an "earth oven." Stones were heated in a bonfire and were then dropped into a hole in the ground. Green leaves were placed over the stones, and the food was laid on the leaves and covered with mats. Often water was poured over the hot stones in order to steam what was being cooked.

Parrots were killed and eaten in great numbers by inland tribesmen. If a bird was captured alive, a hunter would take it to a place where he could hide under leaves, and would hold it in one of his hands, above the leaves. The screams of the captive would bring other parrots to the spot, where they could be brought down.

Long, thin, sharp-pointed wooden spears were the chief weapons of the Maoris; but clubs were used as well. The art of tattooing was common among the Maoris, as among tribes in many other places. They were not content to tattoo just their bodies, but they marked their faces as well. To obtain color, they mixed soot with dog fat, and in this black "paint" a piece of sharp pointed bone was dipped. The pointed bone was used to cut a place where he could hide under leaves, and would hold it in one of his hands, above the leaves. The screams of the captive would bring other parrots to the spot, where they could be brought down.

At the time of the actual launching, one of these shrubs was pulled out by the roots. If the roots were not broken, it was a sign that the canoe would bring good fortune.

The next step was to strike the canoe with the shrub to make it safe for men. Then a woman of high rank stepped into it, to make it safe for women.

To bring about even greater safety, a priest chanted a prayer to the Maori gods, asking them to guard it; and a sacrifice was made. Sometimes the sacrifice was a human being, a relative of the chief offering himself for the purpose. If all the chief's relatives felt that life was too dear to give up (and that seems to have been the usual case), the heart of a sparrow hawk was used instead.

At last the crowd gave a chant of welcome to the new canoe.

When we remember the importance of boats to these island folk, we understand why they made so much ado.

IT'S UP TO THE WOMEN

By Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

Following is one of a series of 60 articles in which the First Lady of the land tells what she thinks about a variety of subjects close to the heart of all modern women. Every word has been written by Mrs. Roosevelt herself.

XXVI.—Don't Try To Be President, Unless

It is very valuable for the young man or the young woman to know from the bottom up how a political organization functions and I personally believe that it is well for all young people to belong to nonpartisan organizations that help them really make a study of the principles for which the various parties stand before affiliating themselves definitely with any one of them.

The old idea of a son following in his father's footsteps in deciding on his political affiliations, does not work in the modern world. It is used to, apparently, in the family footsteps. Youth is more individualistic than ever, it seems, and desires to make up its own mind as to what political party it wishes to join.

I think girls are even more independent than boys in this matter because they have less opportunity for discussion at home or abroad, and their political interests come as entirely new fields to them.

If they are going to be really active in politics, they must start as well for girls and women to start doing things in their own communities, such as helping the associate county chairwomen bring in their own candidates to the polls; acting as tellers or watchers until they finally can take some position, such as member of the county committee or state committee.

The basis of all useful political activity is an interest in human beings and social conditions, and a knowledge of the human nature.

This is not something which can be acquired overnight, and that is why I suggest that young people—particularly young women—concentrate on political activities from the bottom rather than from the top. If they come from the bottom, there will undoubtedly be times when they will feel that the political life is a sordid human beings are disappointing, that their aspirations and their desires are frequently rather low, and it is just as well to realize all this, for no useful work is accomplished until first one is faced with the fact that one is going to be discouraged by finding that people do not always measure up to what you expect of them and by finding out that every body does not always believe in the old adage that "honesty is the best policy," the sooner you get over that discouragement the better.

When a young woman has mastered the details of party organization and has gained a certain amount of knowledge of her fellow human beings, then she may be ready to accept either an appointive or an elective office. She will be far more effective because of this service in her party organization.

Every few days somebody writes and asks me whether I think we will some day have a woman president of the United States and I am afraid that I look upon this question with a certain amount of amusement, for it is really unimportant of what sex a president may be. We certainly will not have a woman president until we have a woman president who is really a woman.

During the next few years, at least, I do not advise any woman to try to be president, or in fact to hold any important office until she has gained experience in minor offices. I think that a woman who is striving for the presidency is striving for the presidency.

SMYRNA, Ga., June 18.—A marriage marked by beauty and dignity was that of Miss Mary Sue Pollock and Frank Duke Torbert, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church, by Rev. Dr. J. H. Gresham, of Atlanta. During the ceremony a program of music was rendered by Mrs. John Williams, pianist; Mrs. George E. Torbert, violinist; and Miss Dorothy Torbert, soloist. Preceding the ceremony Mr. Lindner played "Meditation" by Liszt, and accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Torbert, "All for You" and "At Dawning." The bride's chorus from "Lohengrin" was used for the processional, and "Liebestraum" by Liszt, was played as the marriage vows were made.

The interior of the church, with its stained windows and floral decorations, presented a lovely setting for the ceremony. The decorations featured festoons of vines, ferns and foliage plants and rows of white tapered candles. The bride wore a long, flowing gown of white tulle, with long sleeves and a long train, and a long veil. The bride's bouquet was a large one of long-stemmed white lilies, pink roses and Queen Anne's lace, and was carried by the bride. Cracker Pitching Staff Now Strongest in League, Abbott Says

Oh, See the Poor Hindu--He Does
The Best He Kin Dol

He speaks three languages. He does. And at times a fourth. He can talk turkey. Cold turkey.

But here he was looking into a dictionary purporting to teach the rudiments (how to ask for ham and eggs or a glass of vino) of the Hindu language in six easy lessons.

I am referring to Henry Weber, the old maestro of the heavy-weight rasslin' game. I peered at him suspiciously.

"Well," he said defensively, "all I know about the Hindus is that little bit of verse which begins:

"Oh, see the poor Hindu
He does the best he kin dol."

"Well, what of it?" I asked. "Isn't that enough to know about the Hindu?"

"No," said Mr. Weber, "you see I am bringing one of the blighters down here for the Wednesday night wrestling match. Charley Rentrop, who saw him in St. Louis, recommended him strongly. His name is Jagot Singh," continued the match-maker, "and I want to know a word or so of Hindustani when he arrives."

"Is he," I queried, "anything like Old Coffee Can?" (Old Coffee Can, or Ghafoor Khan, another mystic Hindu, was always a favorite of mine.)

"No, no," said the match-maker, "this fellow is a top-notch wrestler. He could out-wrestle Old Coffee Can in no time at all. He is something like that football team which was up there in Kentucky some years ago."

"You mean," asked my inquiring reporter, "this fellow is as big as a whole football team?"

"No, no, I am talking about that football team—the Praying Colonels. The one that beat Harvard a few years ago."

"You've got me," said the inquisitive reporter, "is the answer two apples and a half or is it no dice?"

"He prays," said the matchmaker. "He gets right down in the ring in his colorful costume and he invokes the aid of the Hindu gods."

"Oh," said the reporter, "so that is a new ballyhoo, eh?"

"No, no, no," said the match-maker. "He is no phoney. He is a real Hindu and he hasn't been in this country very long. He prays to his Gods. Old Coffee Can had been over here several years. But this fellow is new and a real grappler."

The reporter mused. Old Coffee Can was a good guy.

THE HINDU GODS.

"Well," said the reporter, "as I recall it the Hindu worships a mixture of Buddhism and Brahmanism. And that the supreme deities are the triad of Brahma, Vishnu and Siva and that there are several minor deities such as trees, serpents and so forth."

"Well, I don't know," said the match-maker, looking through his six axes lessons in the Hindu language, "I don't know. All I know is he prays like the Praying Colonels."

"Suppose," said the reporter, "he prays to a tree? As I recall it there are a few trees over back of the ball park. They may do. But suppose he wants a serpent? What then? The zoo is pretty careful about loaning out their serpents."

"That," said the match-maker, "is what I am doing here in the library. 'I am reading up on the Hindus.'"

And so I left him. When I left he had learned how to ask for coffee without cream but hadn't discovered any rasslin' talk.

OLD COFFEE CAN.

Old Coffee Can, as the boys named Ghafoor Khan, the Hindu who wrestled in this country a few years ago, was quite a character. I never missed an appearance. When he came to the arena, treading with dignity, his dauber waxed and curled, he was quite a figure.

He had a pair of eyes, did Old Coffee Can, which were perpetually bright and keen. The boys had an idea that Old Coffee Can used to give them the works with those eyes.

The impression was abroad that he could impale them with a glance and hypnotize them very, very easily and make them as clay in the hands of the artist. I had two or three of the boys swear to me they felt some peculiar influence at work whenever they encountered the glittering glare of Old Coffee Can.

But the new one, Jagot Singh, has razzled Jim Londo and other top-notchers and is a real card. Mr. Weber has Frank Speer and others on his card but I must be there to see Jagot Singh.

The Praying Colonel of Hindustan. What a wow that is.

WELL, WELL, WELL.

It is a little confusing, these clean-ups on the recent fight when Primo Carnera, the nice, clean man, who couldn't fight a lick, was butchered by Max Baer.

Before the fights the supporters of the Italian straw man said that he was a great boxer, that he had out-boxed Tommy Loughran, the boxing master, in the Miami fight.

And now they are saying that a good boxer will make a monkey out of Maxwell Baer. And they are saying that Carnera beat himself by refusing to take the count of nine, that he wasn't handled well and all that.

Well, I was sitting there and I must insist that Max Baer had a little something to do with beating Primo Carnera. As I recall he knocked him down 11 times, scared him down three or four more times, had him in abject terror so that he bounded back from a faint; that he hitched up his trunks while Carnera hit him with left hands that couldn't hurt and—oh, a lot of things.

AND THAT PRIMROSE PATH.

I am rather inclined to believe that Max Baer is just being himself and having a swell time being himself. And I don't understand why all the pother about it. That sort of a thing averages up pretty well.

Most of the tirades being delivered at Max Baer because he likes blondes and beer are coming from young men who have done a lot of road work along the primrose path themselves and so they can speak from full knowledge. But Max is like them all, he has to do his own road work there before he learns.

I will give him credit for being entirely honest about it and not putting on a mask when he goes out for a jaunt along the broad highway. He's having a perfectly swell time. He may be not at all admirable but give the boy credit—he's living his own life.

And all those things average up in the end.

Some of those fellows don't seem to mind. There was Tod Sloan who said, "If I had it all to do over again I would do it exactly the same way."

They aren't comforting fellows, they violate all the accepted laws and canons of living—but after all it's their own life. Not admirable, perhaps, according to accepted standards but—still—it's Max Baer's business. Not mine. And you can't get away from the averages. No one can live his life for him.

STRONG FIELD STARTS TODAY IN SOUTHERN

Atlanta Well Represented in Title Tourney at New Orleans.

By Dillon Graham.

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—(AP)—Back in New Orleans, scene of many of its greatest tournaments, for the first time since 1919, the Southern Amateur Golf championship starts tomorrow with the battle for the championship apparently as wide open as broad Canal street that burrows a channel through the heart of this old carnival city.

The first round of the 36-hole qualifying test will be played over the country club course, venue of the recent southern women's title meet, tomorrow, with the final 18 holes Wednesday.

A small but select field of around 100 was registered tonight, first after scrambling for pairs under a hot, sultry sun that bore down without mercy but hopeful of cooler weather and lower scores tomorrow. Few kept cards, most being content with practice rounds, playing several balls and taking their game apart to find erring parts.

FORMER CHAMPION.

Four former champions—Nelson Whitney, of New Orleans; Nelson Bush Jr., of New Orleans; Sam Perry, of Birmingham; and Chastain Harris, of Memphis—are entered but Ralph Redmond, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who won a year ago, had not put in his appearance tonight, and likely will not defend his crown.

Whitney, who has won more southern than any other contender—five, the last in 1919—feels this is a young man's tournament and says he hopes merely to qualify in the title flight. Perry, who was victorious in 1929 and 1932, is among those favored to triumph this year.

Other well-liked contenders are Gene Vinson, of Meridian, Miss.; Thad Street, of Charleston, S. C.; Billy Howell, of Richmond; Earl Stokes, of Louisville, Ky.; Julius Hughes, of Atlanta, and Jesse Rainwater, of Anderson and George Bush, of New Orleans, and Edwin McClure, of Shreveport.

Vinson, several times Mississippi champion and a quarter finalist in this tournament in 1933, is familiar with this course and finds it to his liking. Stokes, runner-up last year, is hitting his shots well.

6,514 YARDS LONG.

The country club course, 6,514 yards long and with a par of 71, is flat but heavily fruited. The greens are in good shape but the fairways afford little roll as a result of heavy rains last week.

George T. Dunlap Jr., the national champion, of Pinehurst, N. C. and New York, who, it was reported last week, would enter, apparently was expected to change his mind for he had not registered when the entry list closed tonight.

The other members of the Texas delegation, Karl Kamrath, of Austin, and the Ball brothers, George and Russell, of El Paso, advanced to the second round with no difficulty.

Kamrath, seeded No. 4, trounced Lee Kulp, of Chicago, 6-3, 6-3, and George Ball No. 7 in the seeded list, defeated Art Spaulding, Chicago, 6-0, 6-1. Russell Ball moved up by default.

Henry Prussoff, the Seattle (Wash.) giant seeded at No. 5, drew a bye and wasted little time in defeating Douglas Corley, Chicago, without loss of a game, in his second rounder.

The exception was John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Texas, who was expected to eliminate Clifford Grooms, an almost unknown Chicagoan, 9-7, 8-6. McDiarmid is seeded next to Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., who drew a first-round bye.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—The bond market started the week quietly today, but prices maintained a steady to firm tone and sentiment appeared to be fairly cheerful.

The trading volume dwindled to $30,000,000, par value, against $11,861,000 last Friday. The Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate issues held an advance of one-tenth of a point to 98.8.

Last-minute congressional activities were watched closely, as were business and industrial trends. The market seemed to find little specially disturbing in either. Prime investment bonds continued to move around their best levels for the year or longer, and secondary groups were only moderately irregular.

Gains of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded by some loans on business. Beet Sugar, Cuba Northern Railway, Cuba Railway, New Orleans Public Service and Wabash.

Among the more active groups of fractions were used in the West—Post Telegraph, Louisville & Nashville, International Telephone, International Hydro-Electric, Goodrich, Denver & Rio Grande and American Water Works.

United States government securities were quiet and slightly mixed.

In the foreign section both the German International 5-1/2s and 7s lost a point each, but German Central Agricultural Bank 6s and 7s rallied 2-3/8 and 2 points, respectively.

Bonds of Poland, Buenos Aires and Norway firmed.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Action will be pushed to obtain a quick ruling by the United States supreme court on the constitutionality of the NIRA, it was stated Monday in the district attorney's office. The circuit court of appeals will be asked to give an early hearing on an appeal taken from a decision of Judge E. Marvin Underwood upholding the constitutionality of the act. The appeal is by the Richmond Hosiery Mills. The mills sought an injunction to prevent indictment for alleged violation of the code. The injunction was denied and the indictment resulted. Trial on the indictment, however, is stayed pending a decision on the appeal on the injunction.

Major Stephen R. Beard, stationed at Philadelphia, Pa., has been ordered to duty at the fourth corps area headquarters.

'RENOVIZE ATLANTA' CAMPAIGN PLANNED

C. of C. and Civic Clubs Backing for Expenditure of $9,000,000.

A plan involving the expenditure of approximately $9,000,000 and the employment of 5,000 of Atlanta's jobs, was announced by Wiley L. Moore, president of the Chamber of Commerce, following the passage of President Roosevelt's housing bill Monday night.

Through the Chamber of Commerce, the seven civic clubs of Atlanta are sponsoring an intensive city-wide "Renovize Atlanta" campaign. Those taking part will be the Rotary, Kiwanis, Civitan, Lions, Exchange, Inter-City Civitan and Masonic Clubs.

Moore announced that plans have been perfected for launching the campaign which, he said, will involve the expenditure of approximately $9,000,000 and also will provide work for 5,000 of Atlanta's unemployed. In addition to the money to be expended on reconditioning of properties, several million dollars will be spent in new construction.

"In my opinion, this federal legislation, which will make funds available to property owners at a reasonable rate, will enable us in Atlanta to carry on an activity which will be more far-reaching in bringing about a return of prosperity than anything which has been attempted during the five years of the depression," Moore said.

Objections to the Roswell road site selected for the consolidation of North and Sandy Springs convict camps, which has been attempted during the five years of the depression, Moore said.

Motorcycle Patrolman G. N. Haley was injured Monday night when an automobile driven by W. E. Field, 320 Church street, Decatur, struck his motorcycle at Ponce de Leon avenue and Boulevard, throwing him from the machine and under the automobile. He was treated at Grady hospital for a bruised shoulder and hip. A case of reckless driving was booked against the driver, and the hearing set for Friday afternoon.

A. T. GAITHER, 50, DIES ON VISIT TO SAVANNAH

Traveling Auditor for Southern Bell Had Lived in Atlanta for 10 Years.

A. T. Gaither, 50, of 301 Tenth street, N. E., traveling auditor for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, died unexpectedly in a Savannah Beach hotel early Monday night. He was in Savannah on business for his company.

Accompanied by his wife and their young son, he left Atlanta last week and went to Savannah to complete an audit. He had gone to the beach with his family after his day's work. Feeling ill, he went to a hotel room to lie down, and there suffered the fatal attack.

No funeral arrangements had been made Monday night.

Charley Sheerin, the husky youngster who supplanted Eddie Taylor at third base today, is eager to improve his batting eye on curve balls.

Despite the fact that Manager Abbott declared a holiday for all his players yesterday, Charley reported at the ball park and asked for a uniform. He had a pitcher along with him to throw him nothing but curves.

Spencer, also anxious to help such a conscientious player, granted his request.

"Maybe he'll be like Bob Johnson, the outfielder with the Athletics; when I had him on the coast he couldn't hit a curve but could murder a fast ball. But he kept having pitchers throw curves at him until now he is one of the best curve ball hitters in the major leagues," Abbott said.

Sandlot Tourney Slated for Macon

The state sandlot baseball tournament of the American Legion will be held in Macon this year, it was said Monday by Dr. R. C. Eaves, chairman of the Legion sandlot committee.

The winner of the state tournament will be eligible to participate in a regional tournament in Atlanta between teams from Florida, Alabama and Mississippi. Dates for the state and regional tournaments will not be set until the season is further advanced.

Robby Opposes Split Season

comes to benefitting the smaller clubs, but I have always been against split seasons. It is a minor league idea that has never been popular, saving with two or three clubs without a chance to get anywhere," he added.

It takes only six votes to split the season now, however, where formerly unanimous assent was required.

THREE VOTES NEEDED. Granting that Nashville and Atlanta, the two leading clubs, will oppose it, they still would have to get the vote of New Orleans, the third place team, to kill it. Tom Watkins and Joe Engel, former opponents of the split idea, are expected to side with it now that their respective teams are down in the quagmire of the second division.

As for Birmingham, Little Rock and Knoxville, the latter which benefitted from the split last year, they are fairly sure to vote "yes."

Atlanta's stand is understandable, as well as preferable. The Crackers are in a good spot, holding second place by a game and a half when they were tabbed for fourth by their most optimistic backers. They have drawn excellently at home, averaging 3,500 persons per game for 29 games.

VOLS TO PACK 'EM. It is fairly conservative to state that their biggest crowds are yet to come, provided they stay in the race. Nashville has 10 games here, including two rain-out games, the first to be played in the series starting July 21. The Crackers also wind up the season with four games with the Vols, which is in their favor—provided they hold their present pace.

Spencer Abbott sees no reason why his club can't be the best defensive club in the league and that it is now better balanced with a batting punch. In short, your Uncle Wilbert Robinson is dead right in voting a vehement "no."
